Don't say that, there is always a chance.

@OP It's best you look into SQLi and xss methods and how to utilize them to test yourself. Also this should be in the requests for hacking section. ?

Yes it is, because a website made for hackers to converse is obviously vulnerable to two of the most well known vulnerabilities. Its not like any hackers go here anyway. Hackforums is just a name, there are no hackers here.

I'll scan it.

I was able to slip some special characters in using the XSS Me addon for Firefox. I wasn't able to get < or > in, but ; / and = weren't encoded. I wouldn't say there is too much risk, but I'd give it a 4/10, 10 being devastating.
