Thread: Random iPhone Adventure App Concept

.Astro - July 24, 2016, 5:13 am

Did this just because of my most recent trip (hiking in Montana de Oro) and because I'm going camping next week :P

Not a real app, just for fun / concept. One of my first times doing somethin' like this. Haven't done much mobile work.

The idea is an app that you can use to find certain places / activities based on your location and stuff. This was more towards hiking but I should probably put something more on getting directions, etc in the top right hand corner of each location instead of how long the hike is lmao.

It looks fantastic, but the proportions don't seem right.

I feel like if this was actually on an iPhone, only 3-4 locations would fit compared to the 6 you have now.

I can tell that you have put a lot of thought into the actual design & I love when designers do that. For example the rating system & popular searches. Small details such as those is what I love to see.

What is the font used on the search bar, where it says "beach hike"

Check out the app AllTrails if you haven't seen it yet. Could get some good ideas from it.
