Is anyone even going to give the next CoD a chance? Personally preordered it just to get Modern Warfare remastered. But is anyone going to be actually giving the new CoD a chance instead of just buying the game for MW?

Wasn't that the one which became one of the most disliked vidoes?

Yes but not accurate in terms of the ratio. It's also the most liked video compared to previous CoD reveals. People disliked it for the lulz. Groupthink at its very best. People dislike, new people see that, they dislike. Virus spreads through YouTube community.

Anyways. I'm calling it right now. IW Campaign will be the best campaign after CoD4 and MW2. ?

Not giving infinite warfare a chance. They keep ruining the name "call of duty"
I'm excited for the cod remaster.

I'm a very open person so I can play basically ANY game and like it. Except for horror type PC games I don't care for. I just don't get scared or into them at all, I'd rather just watch scary movies with my girlfriend and friends like I already do lol.

Anyways my point is, I've enjoyed all of the CoD's except Ghost I just don't like the look or feel of it. But I still have fun playing it at my friends house or when he brings it over just because like I said, I can enjoy any game. Especially with friends :)

But yeah I'm skeptical about this War in Space kinda deal going on. I saw the grappling hooks and shit for Campaign and was just like... it's so hectic and retarded... How are they supposed to have actual maps when everything in space floats away in whatever direction it's pushed/hit? Would seem very highly unrealistic like the games already are... but that just takes it a step further. At lest the other CoD's put some thought into it so Exo Suits similar to Advanced Warfare could happen in the future and BO3 honestly was very believable to me.

Yeah i will give it a try. I already have it pre ordered and downloaded. It looks crappy but you never know it may still be some fun
