How do you find autoclickers in screenshares? and what if the player is on a mac?

How do you hide them, anyone got some tips? ?

If it's an external auto clicker, they might delete and theres no way to find it, maybe check their downloads or browser history, they might also clear those as well tho.

Rename the "spookyautoclicker.jar" to sasasasa.txt and then dededede.jpg.

I hide mine in a texture pack in the Lang folder. When I'm getting ss'd, I just change the .jar back to a .lang. Also the texture pack has to be a .zip format.

Thats actually quite smart haha. But what if you rename the clicker to something completely random and hide it in some random folder, can they then find it?

If you're screen sharing someone on a Mac just give the duck up

Data recovery programs. But how will they find it if I rename it to something random?
