

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Denpa-teki na Kanojo

Aura - July 26, 2016, 5:55 am

Quote:Delinquent Juu Juuzawa is a lone wolf who does not see much use in befriending people. So when a girl named Ame Ochibana claims they are linked together from their previous lives, he is highly skeptical and doesn't want anything to do with her. Even stranger is that her fondest wish is to be his servant. Thinking that Ame must be delusional, he tries to distance himself from her. But when a classmate is murdered, Juu instead decides to keep her close, believing the strange girl to be the culprit. However, her intelligence and skill begin to prove invaluable as the two begin working together to solve the murder.

Denpa-teki na Kanojo weaves together a story of love, loss, and devotion, showing that allies can be found in the most unlikely of places.

Source: http://myanimelist.net/anime/5177/Denpa-teki_na_Kanojo

Type: OVA
Episode(s): 2

Damn it, I wish there was more material or else to make it a full serie... There's only two episodes (43 mins long each) but they were really good. It's different from other "high school"-like Anime which makes it interesting.

Happeh - July 26, 2016, 6:38 am

This sounds pretty interesting actually. Might give it a watch later today and let you know how it was

Aura - July 26, 2016, 7:23 am

It just takes an hour and a half to watch. Watched the 2 episodes before leaving yesterday in the morning. Easy to watch too.

?????? - July 27, 2016, 4:31 am

I watched this some time last year, would've been nice if there was more, but I think these two episodes do a very good job.

Happeh - July 27, 2016, 6:05 am

Watched the first episode, felt the writing was a little forced but this can easily be accepted by the time limit of trying to fit a plot in 40 mins. Animation was okay but not the greatest and the plot was alright (so far) but can't make that judgement until the second episode.

Character development wasn't great either but again, second episode yet.

ankitkhosya - July 27, 2016, 8:08 am its a shame that its just 2 episodes long, i loved this and its among my top 10.