Thread: PSA: Stop Linking Illegal Streaming Sites

Happeh - July 26, 2016, 4:12 pm

PSA: As in the rules:

Section is full of it - if you need a site or a link to one take it to PMs or just use Google. Seriously there's so many streaming sites if you need help finding them you shouldn't be on the internet.

Posting this because Omni's already pissed and I don't want this section to be closed because idiots can't use common sense.

For legal alternatives:

Animaxtv

AnimeSols

Crackle

Crunchyroll

This thread should be a sticky to be honest. Good post. Actually did not know about some of those websites.

Nah, would be waste of a sticky spot when its common sense, just gets ignored here.

Also won't take credit for the list: robbed it from Google but it is a decent list for those looking.

I'm kind of surprised people even need to post links with how easy it is to find good sites to get anime.

According to the owner of masterani.me his website is 100% legal so I use it. I can't guarantee I won't stop using it if it turns out to be legal.

It's not. Don't care what the owner says - rehosting Crunchyroll videos isn't legal. Also this isn't a thread of "hey stop streaming anime", even if it kills the industry do what you want, this is more of a "hey stop posting these links here".

I remember someone made a thread months ago, asking for a source to watch some anime. I linked him 2 websites I think, which are streaming illegally. One of you here told me that it wasn't allowed, something I didn't know and I understood, didn't post it again.

After that however, I remember tons of people, including big repped top shots in this section posting links to those websites. Meh, didn't care much about it since I rarely care about such things but anyways, I don't think this thread will do anything unless it's stickied somehow.

Its been something people haven't cared about since the time I have gotten here. Its not something I really call people up on either or call them out publicly but serious, if Omni is pissed (and word has it he doesn't like this section as it is), then I'd rather make this PSA here and deter it before shit hits the fan.

Cloaked. - July 28, 2016, 1:18 pm

Well, I do hope people will see / know this from now on. I wouldn't want to see this section go away. I don't post much here, I lurk mostly as I do in every other section but it's a place that gave me some good info about certain things and anime in general. In fact, I started watching anime because of this section.

On a scale of 1 to 10, I'd say around an absolute fuck tonne. Seriously for every legitimate service there must be 1000 streaming sites.

Gladly - December 16, 2016, 1:02 pm

The wording is in a weird spot, but the rule mentions "spreading". This of course means no links, but I'd assume "spreading" includes promoting the site by name, no?

Either way, wish the rule was actually enforced in this sub.

minimalist - December 16, 2016, 1:06 pm

ITT: "don't break the rules"

Thanks for the contribution

darknessblade - December 22, 2016, 12:37 pm

ironically the rule is still being broken today.

also note for HAPPEH some of the "legal" sites are outdated, since a small portion is already gone due DMCA claims.

thrudda - December 22, 2016, 1:29 pm

Personally I don't get why people need to post illegal streaming links here, you can simply Google it. There's a ton of it out there.

Kyrus - December 23, 2016, 7:54 am
