Thread: First CSGO provider to support Overwatch

Vuno - July 28, 2016, 2:56 pm

Where's all these skilled CSGO cheat developers? There's no code for you to copy from to make an Overwatch cheat is there? Don't worry, I hear a new developer from Project Velly will code a program that allows you to disable Overwatch's anti-debug features and fight their anti-cheat.

PlatinumD - July 28, 2016, 2:59 pm

Go to your parents if you seek the attention they didn't give you as a child. Nobody gives a shit here. I promise.

Not sure who this is aimed at to be honest? Whats the point of these developers to hop on the bandwagon and try develop Overwatch cheats when they're making enough money/doing well for themselves creating CSGO cheats? You try to cause conflict in this community Vuno and its embarrassing just take the fact not many people are fond of you and don't want you around here anymore. Take the fucking hint boyo ???

So you admit R3Cheats copy and paste and can't code a cheat for a game without public sources? Damn.

You should really get your anger problem checked out. Also, your insults just makes you sound retarded. You should insult properly.

How to be professional when you own a p2c 1o1.

Do your aimbot still snap to the head when it reaches the hitbox with no smooth at all??

do you leet walkbot still take 24 hours to start??

Not even talking about your menu.

they will sue him for money as they did w/ Bossland GmbH as stated in this article:

Bossland's perspective of things regarding the Overwatch-thing:

<http://blog.bossland-gmbh.com/2016/blizzard-devastated-clutching-at-any-straw>

They are riding on high horses - and due to their Bot-income they are capable of going to court with ease, covering all costs in case of a loss.

I don't get why blizzard is making claims of having up to tens of millions in losses due to one (to be fair, huge) provider, but hey - this time it's in an american court.

Time will tell what will happen.

If I were vuno I'd tread lightly when it comes to providing Overwatch cheats, as Blizzard is thirsty for lawyers' work.

Why would Blizzard take the initiative of suing someone when other companies don't do so? (or at least not so often)

From what I know and as far as I can remember the last company who sued someone was Nexon

You think these CSGO copy pasting providers can provide an Overwatch hack? Just maybe you (but idk cause you couldn't even reverse my ESEA hack). There's nothing to really copy and paste from in Overwatch. Like really, do you think noob providers like Hexui, LeagueMode, #, High-Minded (only said this cause I saw you there), PlatinumCheats, LegacyAim could really provide an internal Overwatch cheat?

You know the CSGO scene is filled with open source. Overwatch is a whole new level. Btw, I have a love-hate relationship with you.

It's supposed to be a P2C project with a fair pricing model. Things IRL aswell as stuff directly related to the work came up constantly which made everything delayed. Talking about it out loud makes me think I'm like Organner or this "Badster" at keeping pace w/ their deadlines. ? (It is meant as a joke. Calm your tatas, O! :D)

Unfortunately I haven't had the time to get around it. I honestly thought I would've been done by May '16 but it still takes a lot of time until my P2C project is finished. Also, something else eSports-related came up which might delay it even further.

The time will come when I get my hands around doing that analysis, don't worry. Got those 5 builds safely on a neat USB drive, just waiting to get checked out (even though they are outdated A.F. - but it's not the functionality that counts, it's the executed assembly code)

Reversing isn't hard for many of the P2C providers. Literally the only coders I am uncertain of being able to reverse things on their own, whether be it of knowing them or actually -not- knowing them are "#" (LeagueSharp? don't know the people behind that project although the staff is pretty nice), High-Minded (L1nky I ? you anyways) and LegacyAim(Don't know the coder).

Menalix, Tristan and InvokeStatic all have proven themselves of being able to code something from the ground up rather than scrambling every bit of public intel together.

At times they "might" have conducted statements towards you and / or your product/s with maybe not even that much depth to it, but that doesn't mean they are not able to gather the simplest intel out of a game and re-use that info to create an advantage for the user, be it internally or externally. All you have to do is think for a minute and do some trial and error and you might have yourself an index triggerbot - the simplest of all cheats. It's not hard to write cheats w/ no knowledge about the internals beforehand.

Actually many people are interested in Overwatch cheats. Don't know if they worked for Blizzard but I got approached by a lot of people saying "Yo dude I heard you were this cheat wizard and all, I need some magic for my Overwatch career man! This "are not interested in Overwatch" belonged to those providers who he mentioned not at the users out there. I know that there are a lot of people requesting Overwatch cheats but I thought that many of the coders behind those CS:GO providers might not be interested in creating Overwatch cuz they focus on CS:GO only ;)

An official update on the Overwatch cheat will be on Project Velly today with pictures. It is the first internal Overwatch cheat, and Blizzard doesn't have to worry about me releasing it. Hell, the anti-cheat is the toughest I've seen yet. Just like with what Blizzard do to SC2 now, they patch anything you find, and I don't want my Overwatch shit to be patched.

I've also disabled their dll injection banning and blocking (hence internal). The Overwatch cheat will have the same security as my CSGO ESEA cheat.

Proof will be posted when I get off work today.

Yes, that offset works client side, but I'm the only one to do it. There's an offset that makes it work online. You got to patch other stuff though. Only works for certain Heros as well.

With me being the only developer to make internal hacks for Overwatch, I'm sending niggas to leagues.

No you are sending people to the banlist, big difference. Show some actual proof of ingame footage which you probably can't hence the reason you closed the other topic.

Making a topic to showoff like you can actually do something while not willing to provide any kind of proof that you are capable of doing it???

Well you didn't stated you will not sell it, as far as i know i found an old post of you saying every customer from project velly will get the Overwatch hack, something like that. "Let the hate begin", i have no hate against you nor anyone, i have my own internal Overwatch. Unfortunately i'm using kernel land to strip away BZE's hooks, i didn't want to make my head contribue at anything it will not be given away, just for me.

Yes, they will. A beta. BZE hooks? Why are you using kernel to hack Overwatch? And I'm pretty sure you don't have an internal hack because it requires you to patch something inside of Overwatch...It isn't a hook either.

BZE hooks = Blizzard Entertainment's hooks (i mean what they are hooking)

I entertain into kernel land because i don't want to complicate with user mode land, kernel is much more easier to get stuff unhooked.

This is how I know you're lying. They don't hook anything besides SetUnhandledExceptionFilter and who the fuck uses BZE? Who even calls it Blizzard Entertainment Hooks LOL.

The SetUnhandledExceptionFilter doesn't even block injection. You're saying your using kernel mode to inject? The injection would still fail. I just released some information as well regarding the only hook. Stop your bluffing. Vuno is God and the only developer who is capable of making an internal Overwatch cheat.

Overwatch is designed very clever. It's full of tricks. Example. Instead of directly calling WinAPI.GetProcAddress, they call a few lines of code from an allocated page. The page contains all the APIs they use. The trick is, those aren't the real APIs. The APIs are encrypted and obfuscated. Decrypting them is easy because the code to decrypt it is right below it and the obfuscation, just follow the jumps.

Prime example. Let's pretend their calling GetProcAddress hidden by LoadLibrary.

Code Blah = VunoProc

Mov rdx, blah

Push module
Call @APIPage

@APIPage:
Mov rax, loadlibrary (fake)
Xor rax, 1468
Jo @gotorealaddress
Junkcode
@gotorealaddress
Jmp rax ;GetProcAddress

This is why no CSGO copy paste provider will ever be able to hack Overwatch cause there's nothing to copy paste from unless I release something. If everyone behaves, I may release an decrypted API dump tonight.

Directly calling you god you are making your image much more harder to understand. This is not the only one trick they do, take a deep looking and see what is going on. Until now you did not proved anything.

Take it logically, if it was so simple anyone could hack into Overwatch, but is not.

Use "QueryWorkingSetEx" and see they are returning fake results.

Try to open an handle to game, use RPM to read something and see what happens.

Do you know what they do? Lmao. And stop listening to them UC retards:

Literally like 12+ devs trying to hack the game over there and none of them can read Overwatch memory.

<http://www.unknowncheats.me/forum/overwatch/177750-overwatch-crashes-readprocessmemory.html>

I gave a well detailed post on some findings. Do you know why it looks like their returning fake results? Do you know why RPM fails?

Also, are you who I think you are. You little sneaky you.

On a good note, memory aimbots will be tough without hooks. The addresses are dynamic, the pointers won't be the same next runtime. Everything gets allocated at the start of Overwatch.

Vuno is a clueless inbred without a father from Georgia. He has to wear a helmet every day is he doesn't bump his head when he gets mad and starts slamming things while having a temper tantrum. He doesn't have the skillsor the knowledge to keep his site up from ddos attacks and the mother fucker can't even keep his cheat secure.
