Thread: Break Blade \(TV\) vs Break Blade \(Movies\)

Aura - July 30, 2016, 2:29 pm

Alright so I have Break Blade on my PTW list, however it comes in two versions:

A TV serie of 12 episodes (2014)

A serie of 5 movies (2010 to 2011)

Now my question is: which one should I watch? I'll only watch one because I cannot be bothered to watch the same thing twice in alternative version (Fate/Stay, Fate/Zero being the only exception).

My guess is that the movies will be better since they came out before, but I don't know.

OR... are they both the same exact same thing, except one is in a Movie format, and the other TV serie?

I always watch series because they tend to cover more than movies do because of more overall screen time. I'm certain the series and the movies are the same though but I may be wrong; I believe in this case it was originally a 6-part movie made into episode format because of the release dates of the movies being older than the series.

Looks like a lot of people are recommending the Movies route as well.

I will simply say watch the movie series, and avoid the TV series as you will be sorely disappointed. I've watched both and whilst the TV series is essentially a re-edited version of the movie series, a fair bit is cut and that makes some scenes, and even episodes somewhat incoherent. WATCH THE MOVIE SERIES!

yea the movies are by far the route to go, the series for TV is just... meh
