Thread: [\[Suggestion\] Sports Games Sub Section](#)

Sharjah - August 1, 2016, 2:38 am

Curious as to why we have a FIFA section and not a madden/NBA section? Maybe have a group forum for Sports games and include the most popular ones? Lots of hype for the new Madden 17 and NBA 2K17 soon

This is for the Gaming section

Bluffer - August 1, 2016, 3:12 am

I support this suggestion but do not know if it will happen because I haven't personally seen to much activity around these kinds of games.

Let's see what others say.

There may be activity and hype outside of the HF but inside of HF (at least from what I have seen in the game sections) there isn't enough activity for it's own section. I think instead of having specific sections for Madden, NBA, etc. just create a general section for all things sports games. Then have prefixes with all of the different sports games.

This is seriously one of the most retarded things I've ever heard. No offence but...

"but inside of HF (at least from what I have seen in the game sections) there isn't enough activity for it's own section"

Well no shit! If their is no section, posts will be considered off topic.

Off topic = warning level.

People will tend to use other sections to discuss their topics if there are no specific sections for it. You are allowed to discuss games such as Madden, NBA 2k, etc. in different sections even if they don't have their own. It is not off-topic and should not be reported as such.

The reason other sections are suggested is due to an increase in discussion in certain sub-forums.

I think each individual section would get enough posts/threads to make it an actual sub-section. I've seen sub sections here with not too many posts/threads

If it were combined I think it would be pretty active. (FIFA, Madden, 2k) That way we can just use prefixes to say which one we're talking about, and the section would never die really.

Personally I love playing Madden/2k, so I'm all for this.

Prefixes could work too. Just a whole (sub?) section for Sports games. I just wanted them separate so it's easier to look for players who play the same game as you rather than flipping through pages to find the right thread

I think a combined section is the way to go if you're wanting this section honestly. As an avid NBA, and Fifa player I know that they can't maintain too much activity here, but if they were all in a section together who knows? The Fifa section should also be included in that I believe.

Any other thoughts on this suggestion? Would like to see it implemented hopefully. Could help out some fellow sport gamers

Yeah, want to see if there's a following for FM on here. Nowhere to post really currently, FIFA section is dead on here although it might spice up in a month (17 release).

I think all 17 releases are gonna bring a lot of hype towards this forum. Lots of gamers recently and most enjoy sport games

For sure that is correct, but I am still not sure on the activity. It doesn't seem to last long before the activity dies down again.

When a section becomes super active, then more people want to join in, which brings more activity

I am not disputing that, but look at the section right now. The last post was 2 days ago. The activity doesn't stay if there isn't enough interest. What I was saying for this would be to have them all in one section where maybe the activity would stay relatively good.

FIFA 16 is quite the old game. There really isn't much hype for any of the games due to new ones coming out and the inability to transfer teams. And yes, I agree. One section wouldn't be that bad. Only problem is I don't play much FIFA/NBA as they don't interest me, and there will be a few people who won't bother using tags which may or may not fuck the section up.

Essentially it's only a matter of time before activity dies down, I was on HF for the 16 releases and the activity didn't last too long. Unless 17 has to offer up something new which ensures the content won't get stale after a while I see all individual sections ending up like the FIFA section. As I said earlier, a combined section with prefixes would be the way to go since there simply won't be enough activity and will end up like the Diablo and/or FIFA sections. People will use the tags for sure, and if they don't I don't think it would ruin the whole section.

Dowls - August 5, 2016, 11:43 am

I looked at FIFA forum, from EA. There most popular threads tend to be huge league discussions where fans congregate and talk about real life football. This forum doesn't seem to have a following even in the sports world, let alone a FIFA game forum.

I'm pretty sure the FIFA activity would increase should this forum become sports games.
