Going there redirects me to the Sucuri Website Firewall site..

<http://prntscr.com/c3bkps>

It just keeps telling me this, no matter how many times I press proceed.

Was able to get here to post this topic, because I remember which id's go to which sections in my url..

Try clearing your cache and/or using another browser & disabling all plugins/userscripts.

Does the captcha typically look like this:

If so use Google Chrome.

These don't work with firefox on my computer for some reason. The "Im not a Robot" ones work fine.

Looks like the captcha just isn't showing to you, as another member said your best bet would be to clear your cache/cookies, disable your browser plugins, or try another browser.

Earlier today I had one captcha and entered it without difficulty, and haven't seen any others since!

Working fine for me, I just registered.

Ambien - August 8, 2016, 6:54 pm

I got the captcha just now.

I get the captcha every now and then, but it works fine when I enter them.

I've got this problem couple times. I think omni is configuring a new firewall.

Earlier today I had one captcha and entered it without difficulty, and haven't seen any others since! When this was occurring (not on HF but on another site) I did everything clear cache/cookies, disabled extensions, etc It would never show up. I ended up having to use vanilla install of Google Chrome and they work fine.
