We recommend you don't use any main emails for this but to create a new one instead.

I've added a new feature: this program is 100% AGAINST STACKING. When email bombing a Gmail address, the emails usually stack up and appear as 1 email. Gmail implemented this feature to prevent issues with spam. However, the program is now anti-stacking so that this is ignored and the emails are sent completely separately.

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

If you haven't used something of this sort before, it may be confusing on what to enter in the different fields on the "Connection" tab. Due to this, I've made a simple tutorial down below that you can follow. Heads up: I recommend to use Gmail always as it works best.

Server: This field is where you enter your SMTP server. If you're not sure what this is, here are the ones for some of the common email providers:

Gmail: smtp.gmail.com

Yahoo: smtp.mail.yahoo.com

Outlook/Hotmail: smtp-mail.outlook.com

If your email provider is not listed above, Google: "(your email provider) SMTP settings)".

For Gmail accounts, please be sure to enable access from less secure apps in your settings here:
<https://myaccount.google.com/security>

Port: This is where you enter the port for your outgoing mail server. If you're not sure what this is, here are the ones for some of the common email providers:

Gmail: 587

Yahoo: 465

Outlook/Hotmail: 587

If your email provider is not listed above, Google: "(your email provider) SMTP settings)".

SSL: This is where you check the box or not depending on whether your email provider requires SSL to send email. If you're not sure what this is, here are the ones for some of the common email providers:

Gmail: Yes/Checked

Yahoo: Yes/Checked

Outlook/Hotmail: Yes/Checked

If your email provider is not listed above, Google: "(your email provider) SMTP settings)".

This program is great, at first I was a little hesitant due to the threat alert, however FiftyTwo assured me it was a false positive. The GUI is really nice, it's not clunky at all and the tabs are organised. My email even hit the inbox too, which I was surprised about. For $8.99, you can't really complain. I've seen more expensive tools which don't work as well as this program. Thanks for all your help, FiftyTwo.

NEW UPDATE:

A small but helpful new feature has been added.

I have, upon request, added a "Stop" button to the message tab to stop the current emails being sent if there are any. The button also resets the email count to prevent confusion.

Feel free to suggest any features for me to add as I am open to helping all customers in the best way possible by improving your experience.

Here is a screenshot to show the new feature:

Purchased the mail bomber and its exactly as advertised.

I recommend using a gmail to use the spamming as outlook creates an error pretty quickly due to having to log back in to keep sending emails.

Outlook also seems to be pretty good at keeping them in the spam folder. But this app does a pretty good job when attacking google emails.

Thanks for your review.

The thing is that the tool can't force the email into a specific folder - no tool can.

If the email address or email content is flagged by the recipient's SMTP, it will get sent to spam.

Unfortunately, I have no control over that, but I would bypass it if I could.

Dynamo999_eu - June 5, 2017, 8:37 am my own review. I tend to test most apps on HF:

-UI 9/10 : very clean , simple

-Options 5/10:

1) well, you cannot edit subject which is weird

2) no success of failed message when you send so you don't know what is happening

2 key things IMO that are missing

3) no option for smtp list or multiple saved profiles so the manual work is still intense

- Effectiveness: (8/10) seems to work when all settings are ok. Remember that spam or not spam also depends on the smtp you are using.

GreyPaperTown - June 8, 2017, 12:03 pm

2 key things IMO that are missing

3) no option for smtp list or multiple saved profiles so the manual work is still intense

- Effectiveness: (8/10) seems to work when all settings are ok. Remember that spam or not spam also depends on the smtp you are using. Thanks for your review bud.

-> The subject as a random string is an anti stacking feature. If you type your own subject, then it will go with what you have typed.

-> The "count" in the message tab shows how many emails have been successfully sent, which is why I haven't added a pop up which tells you how many have successfully gone through.

-> There is an option to "remember" the details in the connection tab for the next time you open the tool. It will save it automatically as soon as you exit the program.

Enjoy the program! ?

FiftyTwo - June 9, 2017, 12:08 pm

NEW UPDATE:

With some help from a fellow member of the forum, I've now successfully implemented a fully functional "Remember Me" and "Subject" feature. Before the update, you'd need to re-enter the SMTP settings every time you reopened the application. Now, however, you can check the "Remember Me" option to bypass this. The old version would set the subject as a random string to prevent stacking on Gmail emails, but I have now made this optional. You can choose to either use the anti-stacking feature, setting the subject as a random string, or not use the feature, setting the subject to whatever you'd like.

All new customers will receive the updated version by default.

Past customers will need to PM me with order information to receive the updated version free of charge.

A few screenshots to show this update:

Hi,

If your PC can't handle too many email requests then the program will return an error.
And responding to the time, I've never had an issue in which it takes that long to send emails, nor has my customers. I'd assume it's again because of your PC or your internet speed. The tool doesn't place any limits whatsoever.
Thanks and hope you enjoy.

The recipient's SMTP decides whether the email will go to spam or not, but as long as you aren't triggering the spam system using keywords then it should go to inbox.

The tool can mass mail but the amount it can send depends on your PC power and the limits your SMTP server place.

The inbox rate isn't down to the tool, but entirely down to the email you send. Any red flags that your recipient's SMTP server catch could possibly throw it out of the inbox.

Hey, can you pm me the reply.

Question:

I currently have a mass mailer that logs into email accounts but cannot send that many emails due to proxies having the ports to send emails blocked. Where do you get your proxies, are they effective?

I will pay for this certainly if you can add me on skype/discord. (PM me your contact info)

Thank you.

Hi, please send me a message through the autobuy and I can talk to you there.

You do need SMTP to use the software, and there is no maximum limitation placed on the tool but your SMTP may place restrictions.

Inbox delivery is unguaranteeable - anybody who guarantees inbox on a mailing program is falsely advertising; any email can raise a flag by the recipient's SMTP. From my experience, it has always gone to inbox.

Thanks.

Hi,

Thanks for your feedback.

Some SMTP servers block access from less secure apps as it's called (Gmail allow this if enabled in settings) and this is why it may not be able to connect to some servers.

The tool can work with any server that allows this.

This is why I recommend Gmail as it will always allow it if enabled.

Hey so I'm getting a "You must start with the STARTTLS command first" error after using it without issue for a while with gmail. Are there settings that work best with the gmail smtp?

I should say it now says "failure sending email" and "unable to read data from the transport connection: net_io_connectionclosed"

Hi,

Sorry for the problem you're experiencing.
Are you potentially using a VPN?
Have you enabled access from less secure apps as suggested in the tutorial?
As for the STARTTLS command error, this occurs if you have not enabled SSL. The tutorial teaches you which settings to use for Gmail SMTP.

Let me know,
Thanks!

After some help from FiftyTwo and some playing around I finally got it to work. It was my fault as I entered the wrong port code lmao. This program is great, at first I was a little hesitant due to the threat alert, however FiftyTwo assured me it was a false positive. The GUI is really nice, it's not clunky at all and the tabs are organised. My email even hit the inbox too, which I was surprised about. For $8.99, you can't really complain. I've seen more expensive tools which don't work as well as this program. Thanks for all your help, FiftyTwo.

To clear some misunderstandings; HTML body option, ability to attachments, importing a list of recipients, any SMTP and anti-stacking option are all built into Mail Explosion.

The program is an efficient bomber, name spoofer and mass mailer.

Hi,

As far as the tool goes, it's coded to be as stable as possible.

It may crash because your SMTP blocked the request or your PC can't handle it.

I'm always able to spam 100 emails fine without a crash.

Try lowering it to what your PC can handle and do that multiple times to total 100.

Thanks.

The content of your email and your email address are what spam filters rely on, so it's all down to those factors to decide where the email delivers to.

I'm not sure what your second question is exactly, if you can rephrase it I'd love to help.

Thanks!

spamboss - April 15, 2018, 11:41 am

thanks for your response , what i mean is that i brute airline accounts , i have access to the accounts , but the password not login to the owner email and i will change the email inside the profile account and flood the email because the airline will send update to the owner email which i have no access to delete , i am using some flooding site to work but , but i prefer to have soft to flood like 5k 10k 20k if your soft can do this to some domain like cox ,charter

The tool places no limitations however your SMTP may do so, therefore I can't answer your question accurately.

Theoretically, you should be able to send as many emails as you want because Mail Explosion is limitless, but your SMTP may limit that.

Speeds are dependent on your PC's processing times and your SMTP server's speeds.

Thanks.

What is the limit for how much email you can send?

I have like 5000 emails i would like to mass send to. And include my website adress in a hyperlink.

Would that go to spam?

As much as i would lile to think thos doesnt go to spam i cant stop wonder why would you sell this for 10 dollar when serious companies pay hundreds or even thousands of dollars for being able to mass send email that dont go to spam.

Mail Explosion places absolutely no limits on what you can do with the tool.

The only limitations that may be in place would be your SMTP and you'd need to talk to/research your host to know more about that.

Thanks.

confusp5454 - September 19, 2018, 4:10 am does it have an option to add SMTP IP login pass of multiple accounts ore only uses localhost settings?

does it have an option to send html format ? ore just plain TEXT

JohnBonkers - September 20, 2018, 1:24 pm noticed how old gmail accounts gave me that error despite low secure app access being activated. fresh accs were fine though

The SMTP Server requires a secure connection or the client was not authenticated. 5.5.1 Authentication required.

MeAndMyPsyche - September 21, 2018, 1:25 am

This has probably been asked like 100x but is the email spoofer currently working with gmail?

for eg, I might want Lance@fbi.gov

JohnBonkers - September 21, 2018, 2:03 am

I will post my thoughts down here after making use of the software now in the next coming days when I got something out of it. At the moment I have not figured out how to send to multiple emails without experiencing a timeout error.

Very interested in your product.

My pre-sale questions:

1. How many SMTP accounts I can add?

2. For example, I have 3 Gmail account that I want to use their SMTP to send emails. Each email has 500 sending limit a day; So after adding all 3 SMTP to the software (assuming the software allows that), I should be able to send 1500 emails each day. Can it be done with this software? Or I should manually change the SMTP after reching the limit? Can I say how many emails per hour/day or the software send them at once?

Regards.

You can run multiple instances of the program to use multiple SMTPs at once.

Interesting product, but I love you to answer a question concerning the inbox delivery.

What determines the guarantee of email to hit inbox, do smtp have any role to play or your software just make emails hit inbox? Even inbox to outlook emails?. Enlighten me please. Thanks

Hi,

Any expenses other than the tool may be an SMTP with high limits.

Thanks.

You disputed your payment which voids your warranty and so you are not eligible for support. You'll need to make a full payment again in order to receive support. Other customers who updated have said the problem has fixed for them now.

How are you getting around all the trojans associated with the program, and windows defender? I have done all the exclusions, yet malware bytes and windows defender will not allow a download without erasing the file.
