Thread: Suppose you had \$5,000 to invest in a online business. How would you spend it?

MiLkBoNe - August 16, 2016, 4:59 pm

Let's say you received $5,000 that you can only spend to start an online business. How would you utilize all that money?

I think it'd be interesting to see how everyone would utilize their money differently.

Try to be as specific as possible.

This is just an example -

- Build a website for a certain niche ($875)
- Pay for Hosting, certificates, payment processor ($150)
- Buy the products in bulk to sell for profit ($2,000)
- Get traffic with paid advertising ($3,000)

I would also like to see some replies on this, posting to read later.

HairyHarry - August 16, 2016, 5:07 pm

Good question.

There's a lot of options.

Since I am danish, and have a good knowledge of the danish market, I would most likely just see what's popular in the US, and just be the first to import it to Denmark. Plenty of people have made millions that way, and I don't see why I shouldn't be able to.

If I wanted to do something online without customer relations, it should be something that followed my passion for videogames. Possibly something with clickbait, due to the amount of money in it. May not be "clean cash", but it should be fairly profitable.

Else there's always the good old solo ads, which will be profitable forever most likely.

Well if you want to start a business maybe build a site and hire people to help you build it. Then charge for it.

Martha Maarcy May Marlene - August 16, 2016, 5:42 pm

Slowly buildup a nice collection of niche websites and monetize through ads, drop shipping and affiliate marketing.

So you basically want me to explain you step-by-step how to make money out of those $5000.

hamzasohail - August 16, 2016, 6:53 pm

1) Invest in an eCommerce coach to shortcut my progress, and learn new techniques with applications

2) Create my eCommerce business

3) Nurture said business until it can support itself

Rinse and repeat.

No I'm not asking for an explanation. I just thought it would be interesting to see how everyone would use their money differently. Some may use their money for strictly marketing/advertising while others may choose a creative route like buying art supplies to create art to sell online etc. ?

AraB_H4CKiNG - August 16, 2016, 10:37 pm

I would spend it in SEO.

First find some good low-competition amazon keywords.

Buy a domain (better an expired one which is clean)

Buy content for root page like 1500 words

buy another content (like 10 product reviews with 500 words each)

See where it will rank, then buy good SEO (hq web 2.0 posts, PBN links and so on)

Bank!

Pretty solid idea. I've heard that ranking Amazon sites make some big bucks!

1. $3,000 In a well earning shopify/dropshipping store (would have some good funds to keep a flow coming in).

2. $600 Into an altcoin (ethereum, or maybe do some research on where to invest).

3. $400 Into startup site(s) (gambling site setups, domain(s), hosting, logo etc)

4. $600-800 Into advertising for startup site.

5. $200 spare, possibly for backup advertising for the shopify/dropshipping store.

markoboy22 - August 17, 2016, 12:37 am

I really don't know. I would probably end up doing something blackhat / illegal.

Latinsnake - August 17, 2016, 2:22 am

Don't wanna get technical here but a website shouldn't cost more than $300. And honestly it'd be along the basis of what you typed already op. lol

A well designed custom website can run into the thousands! It depends on who you hire etc but by no means $875 for a website is ridiculous. ?

Juicy - August 18, 2016, 1:46 pm

Try to invest but end up spending it on back page prostitutes.

Interesting, what type of advertisement were you thinking? Paid ads or email etc... ?

I'd spend about $50 on a website, hosting, and SSL. I'd spend about $4,500 on my personal method for paid advertising.

Kornflex - October 11, 2016, 9:44 am

- 10$ for .com domain related to fitness-lose weight-body building
- 10$ for hosting
- 97$ for Scrapebox vol.2 or cracked version 1.15 which is not reliable
- 100$ for pack of private proxies
- 20$ for shared proxies
- 240$ for 2 licences of Xrumer
- 0$ for cracked SE Nuke (working and reliable)
- 0$ for Kontent Machine (working and reliable)
- 300$ for dedicated servers (price may vary due to server spec)
- 100$ for VPS (price may vary due to server spec)

1. Build your website and drive some quality traffic for 2-3 days. You don't want to rank in search engines so you don't need any SEO.

2. Sign up with Peerfly or any other CPA network who have US/CA/NZ/AUS trial offers and start promoting them

3. Scrape and spin few articles with Kontent Machine, put your keywords with anchor text

4. Blast the web with SE Nuke with those articles from your PC or VPS

5. Parse the web 24/7 from dedicated server 1 with Hrefer which comes for free with Xrumer, for your niche related forums

6. Blast those forums 24/7 from dedicated server 2 with your Xrumer

7. Scrape the web from VPS with Scrapebox to find your niche related blogs
8. Blast the web from VPS with your Scrapebox
9. Use your Scrapebox to make a list of keywords related to the product you promote

I know it's only 877$ spent but you can scale everything up, with choosing more products to promote. That means more servers, more licences, more proxies. But the results are awesome. It's even easier if you have/want to promote your own shopify store or your own product(s).

With tools above only sky is the limit.

I would buy and sell stocks with the $5k, I am not really interested in starting any small business with $5k.
