This is the beginner hacking section. This is where people who have no idea of anything, are trying to do something, not knowing what it is. You are posting an intermediate coding course that's literally click-bait for skids. They will try and replicate the code, not understand it and build their own keylogger, but replicate it, till the part where they're missing dependencies and fuck up stuff.

Yeah lol I agree, but maybe they should give it a shot too so they'll at least get a better grip when it comes to keyloggers :)

If they can't understand it fully, there is no getting "a better grip". It's still code you know, and who really understands code? Coders. Not skids. They copy code, they don't write it. I know because I used to do the exact same thing until I got fed up with stuff not working and decided to start from scratch with whatever programming idea I had.

"Highly Advanced"

".NET"

Choose one.

I'm pretty sure that posting a thread to advertise another one is against the rules.
