Lipton's Ice Tea™ - August 27, 2016, 6:56 pm

Hi there,

Sorry to bring up my warning level publicly and the reason for it (if this isn't allowed I will delete this thread) but I just wanted to ask.

So I just recently got 20% warning level for Posting Etiquette, I don't mind getting warning level - this is my second time and the last time was way back last year.

Posting Etiquette (+20 points)

The post was something along the following on a thread asking what shows to watch.

Quote:POWER [this was repeated around 20 times]

I honestly can't recommend this show enough.

I was wondering - I know I repeated the word power a lot, but this was to give emphasis on how much I loved this show, I had seen people repeat a word over and over before. I understand if I had just put that word over and over and nothing else that'd be considered LQ but I thought as I gave my reason after that.

Just wanted to clear up the blurred line on this - not expecting the warning level to be removed or anything.

Thanks,
L.I.T

So you spammed the word? No need to do that man just make it large.

Power!

you should've put it like 3 times. I know staff wont remove warning level but who cares right? I don't think people care about it tbh

Staff don't give warnings for no reason mate, you did something wrong.

You were warned for a reason. If you think you've been warned for an invalid reason, PM the member of staff that warned you, and they'll give you an explanation of why you received it.

Spamming a word classifies as a posting etiquette violation. Deserved,sorry.

Seriously that show is so good.

And you had to ask?
