Thread: President Obama just extended the state of emergency thats existed for 15 years!

CheGuevara? - August 31, 2016, 2:52 am

Until the announcement that Barack Obama was extending the state of emergency that has legally existed in the United States since September 14, 2001, hit my inbox this afternoon, I will confess that I was somewhat unaware we were in an emergency situation.

But, apparently we are:

Given that the emergency is defined vaguely as constituting something like “terrorists might attack the country,” it seems like we should consider dropping the charade of annual renewals and just admit that “emergency” 9/11 powers are now a permanent part of the landscape.

Assange has been assassinated and Wikileaks has been compromised.

This will be my last post.

Assange is fine. Don't know where he got that idea from!

However there was a attempt on his life few weeks ago, didn't really make the news though.

Well, the guy who were going to kill Assange never came close.

Yeah this is true. The list is getting bigger and bigger no doubt.

We'll just have to wait and see what happens to Assange.
