I'd like to vouch for this RAT - was recently given the opportunity to try this out and it's awesome with it's cross-OS compatibility and dual stub configuration (C# and Java) If you're using OS X or otherwise, get this

Was considering OScelestial but i heard startup doesn't work for macs?

Demoralise - September 22, 2016, 10:56 pm

NetWire. It is native and will run on Mac OSX without any extra software needing to be installed.

Will it be detected? Or would you have to find a suitable crypter for it?

Mac malware crypters do not exist - but only 25% of all Mac users have an antivirus installed.

Though it should become FUD if you simply UPX the NetWire output for Mac.

If you need a RAT that works specifically for OS X, check out PiraX Terminal:
