Thread: Joystick banrate

Buzzle - September 4, 2016, 2:35 pm

I know it is uncertain regarding banrates for botting, but do you guys know if there are high ban rates for using a joystick modification on for example your iphone?

I was wondering if it is worth trying out. I'd appreciate it if anyone with experience could elaborate.

Also feel free to inform me about a good joystick "hack" for ios.

Typically, very low to no chance of ban. Only way this will get you banned is 1 moving wayyy too fast or 2, teleporting.

Poke Go ++ on cydia is a good option if your jailbroken, its the same creator as Go radar (app)

I prefer not to jailbreak as there is a app in my country that we use to transfer money easily to people just by having their phone number. That app does not work when the phone is jailbroken.

Then you'll want to give "tutu pokemon go" a try

There are ways to circumvent jailbreak detection. Such as using tsProtector or if you're the latest jailbreak for 9.2-9.3.3, you could just reboot your phone and not run the jailbreak again. Or if you dont want to jailbreak, you can sideload Poke++ I believe. Check /r/sideloaded. Should be there.

Everyone keeps saying Tutu app and Pokemon Go Tutu and every time I search the app store, I can never find what app it is that everyone is mentioning.

What's the dev name and exact app name? Maybe I'm retarded or my phone is retarded, but I don't see a damn thing when I'm searching on the Play store.

It's not an app, you have to download it from Safari and trust it on your device. It's a Japanese app store with modded games and you can download the modded Pokemon Go from there.

I decided to run with the tutu method on my ipad for now as a test run. However every version I try seems to just get a gps error+blackscreen and the app crashes. Anyone experienced this?

edit1; Sometimes I am shown a TOS page for me to accept, however the game crashes before I even have the time to accept it.

edit2; It seems that the issue lies with that specific Ipad. Works on my other devices.

You don't need to jailbreak. Run Cydia impactor to install the cracked app.

That's odd, i've used mine on the same account even before the ban waves. Still use it now and haven't been banned.

Same for a friend of mine with two different accounts. I think it depends a lot on how you use it / if you abuse it.

Using any emulation service will end up dropping the banhammer, all of it is against TOS so make sure you use a spare account not a main.

There has been ban threads in relation to use of NOX Player(Android) so just be careful.

I know there is a risk was just wondering if the banrates were anywhere close to the botting banrates.

Anyone got a joystick for android :)?

Buzzle - October 7, 2016, 3:00 pm

Would it be unsafe to use joystick now since the new api or is that irrelevant?
