

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Music player \(soundtrack w/ playlist\)

Cammy - September 6, 2016, 3:16 pm

so I'm not the best of webdevs (i'm not studying it at all) but I had a go at making the following example more fancy:

http://jonhall.info/examples/html5_audio_playlist_example.html

and ended up with this:

<http://715.wf/stream/soundtrack/vol2/>

it's supposed to be responsive so it looks/works on phones too (works on mine lel).

tell me any suggestions you have to fix or improve on thanks.

pic if it doesnt load (my host sucks ass):

click to enlarge

now has a search option as suggested ?

Toscan - September 6, 2016, 5:08 pm

That's awesome work brother! I like the look and feel of it as well. Maybe a search option for various soundtracks. Could maybe add a theme switcher. Other than that good job!

Cammy - September 7, 2016, 2:00 am

(Sep 6, 2016 05:08 PM)Toscan Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) That's awesome work brother! I like the look and feel of it as well. Maybe a search option for various soundtracks. Could maybe add a theme switcher. Other than that good job!

thanks for the suggestions I'll give them a go and see how they turn out not sure how I would go with a search bar due to how the playlist is populated (it's hard coded)

i guess that's another challenge then lel.

Chubs™ aka badman - September 7, 2016, 5:45 am

Or inside of a search bar for music and stuff why don't you try add something where we could add music into it from like a YouTube link.

Cammy - September 7, 2016, 5:54 am

(Sep 7, 2016 05:45 AM)Chubs™ aka badman Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) why don't you try add something where we could add music into it from like a YouTube link.

That's not really the point of the player not to mention it would require rewriting a lot of code and probably using the YouTube api so no thanks lol.

Cytube works good enough for that

