- Liquidweb.com- Liquid web has an affiliate program. The ads that are displayed aren't as "creative" as other sites, but they pay a good amount of money for advertising them.

- Adbrite.com- Adbrite is basically the normal alternative to Adsense. Everyone seems to enjoy using this site. The text link ads are very attractive and draw in clicks easily. Although the adbrite revenue is sometimes half that of Adsense, it's a great company for target business web sites. Adbrite is a great program if you have an adult web site (which Adsense doesn't allow).

- Kontera.com- Kontera is an affiliate program that earns revenue for impressions and clicks. The ads can be popped up if hovered over, easily getting more clicks and generating more revenue. This is one of the powerhouse affiliate programs. Usually powerhouse programs generate powerhouse money, and that's exactly what it does.

- Amazon.com- Amazon has an affiliate program that allows you to sell items from their site. You have the choice to choose what you want to sell to the public. Just by choosing a keyword, items related to that keyword will show up and be available to the public. You also get a little revenue due to page impressions.

- Ebay.com- Ebay is the same way that Amazon is, except that Ebay doesn't just hire anyone. They have turned down a lot of people. I've been turned down 4 times, but it can generate excellent income.

That's right, no risk at all. Matter of fact, what if I told you that you could earn money playing a risk free stock market game? Yeah, sounds too good to be true, but it's possible. It started with me using virtual simulations of the stock market to learn some things before I decide to invest my hard earned money into the market, but I found out that I can earn money just for playing a virtual simulation.
