I'll keep it short. Whenever I go to parties I often get these fucking death-stares from a lot of guys when I'm talking to girls that I'm not even trying to get down with. Do they feel threatened because another guy is "preying" on girls, or do you think it has to do with something else?

I think It's because they're scared that I will "take" their girl for the night or something, but sometimes even happen when I just talk to my male friends as well. Sometimes it gets to the extent that they kick / hit me from behind, which is fucked up, lol.

You could ask them what's going on if this happens again? Our guess is as good as yours I am afraid.

Raf Simons - September 11, 2016, 11:24 am

It's because they're jealous that you're vape naysh and they aren't.

CatsCattail - September 11, 2016, 11:25 am

Yeah it's natural for people to be intimidated by people of the same gender in terms of being competition for potential partners. If that happens frequently I'd say you should just be friends with more girls than guys. Let them deal with it while you get all the pussy.

I'm not sure how much of a choice you have in who you hang out with, but I think it's pretty clear that some personality types are by far more caught up in the optics and mechanics of being in a relationship than they are just being with and knowing different types of people. I guess that's sort of a long way of saying that is sounds like you're hanging out with assholes.

Waffle - September 11, 2016, 3:32 pm

Tell them to fuck off. They will be scared of you man, especially if you let them know that you own a botnet.
