Hi,

I am about to launch a website for the U.S market which I know will piss of some people and may be subject to lawsuits in the future. For this reason I do not want the public to know I am behind the website. I was told not to purchase the domain name via Godaddy.com because they will easily provide the name of the person who bought it, and not to have the domain name owned buy a U.S corporation.

Someone recommended me to open an Icelandic corporation because they have one the best free speech laws to protect the identity the owners behind the corporation. Then I was told to buy the domain name via an Icelandic domain registration service (similar to Godaddy but in Iceland)

Can someone help me with advice regarding this? I will also need an out of the country bank account and ACH service for the company.

I mean you could just enter all fake info and use a offshore domain and host provider.

Hello,

Buy the domain name from an offshore host that allows Bitcoin as a payment.

Thx guys,

Any recommendation as to which host provider to use? Which country to open the corporation that will own the website? Which email service provider should I use?
