Is this a list you dumped yourslef?

How much do you knwo about teh college

You could attempt some social engineering

Like email spoof them from admin@college.edu

saying if they complete this survey they will get a 100$ giftcard

This is a new start of teh year promotion

IDK

I don't think anyone has the list except for the college, its a fresh batch. Spoofing would be an idea however it could show up as spam email so that might not be the best idea. I thought of a survey but I don't know if people would fall for it, 1. most survey's that generate cash are a pain in the ass 2. students are lazy.

There's no value in it. That info is public information and anyone including companies have access to it. All universities provide such info.

1. Phish them with a good crafted email.
2. Hack into their social media and shit, and from there try to use their accounts to hack other people from your university by using the hacked facebook accoount to send a RAT to that persons best friend, hack the computer, get nudes, blackmail them, gg.

just think creatively.

Here's an educational simple thought:

Yes you can spoof and land in their inbox without spam, look up email spoofers here...

1. Spoof emails to them.

Real them in, inform them of something they should look out for, like something important.

Look up the school and look at the schedule and mention "deadline blah blah before this <specific to school event>"..

Then send the last spoofed email, which will get them

2. You either infect them, or get person information from them.

Address\dob\ssn

I'd say do both. Maybe a pdf document, silent exploit where they can input some private personal information, simultaneously infecting them while capturing what they type and in the document informing them of the link to go to, to upload said file. But that link is fake, or Not found.

"school.edu/EduSelectionServ/" Which shouldn't matter to you if it doesn't.

Now... you decide what you do with said information for $$.. I just explain to you 1 thing to do. Now you have hundreds of doors to open after that. Enjoy your potential riches, or epic failure.

I think it is definitely not public information in Canada, otherwise all students (including myself) would be getting a shit load of spam emails, but we don't. We only get emails from our schools.

FractumSeraph - September 13, 2016, 7:48 pm

I actually have a list like this too, lol.

My university has an email for every student. (Whatever@school.edu), and then they also keep a personal email for us, like our gmail or yahoo or whatever we used.

Not too long ago a teacher sent an email to every students personal address using CC instead of BCC.

Not much you can do with it that I know of though.
