Don't mean to sound like an ass but I don't believe win.ini and autoexec.bat are needed to load Windows.

Annnddd, boot.ini is a simple text document that can easily be re-written, and you can copy ntldr from another computer or off of your Win disk. So technically it's just a temporary shutdown batch..

But that is only for people who can't do that. non smart computer people teachers
and kids
not smart parents you know.
