Thread: USER TRYING TO RAT PEOPLE VIA PMs UID=3252996

Exchanged - September 14, 2016, 6:08 am

This user: <https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=3252996> is trying to rat me, and possibly other HF Members.

Here is a screenshot of a pm he sent me.

Just be careful out there. And don't get scammed by him.

He got 19 posts, 0 rep, and L33T.

He was even looking for native rats lol. And now he sending me this "native" Rat.

Virus scans:

Dude I wouldn't be that sure. I think it's just a desperate multi from LF.

Well it is a RAT. Wouldn't be 0/35 detection. But it does probably have a RAT.

Pretty much this OP. I mean why he should recommend LF when he wants to spread his RAT here?

Well I guess he uploaded the cracked version.

Someone else should take a look into these scans. can't judge that.

I don't think so. He just didn't receive a positive reputation yet.

Account of the Gods - September 14, 2016, 11:18 pm

Ill try it on Vmware when I have time, found similar thread on LF with screens, however the people posting positive things there have like no posts not into going into argue with anyone, maybe hes spreading malware, thats one option, and second possible is that he spreads his legit rat and wants to make it famous screens really look legit

op you should consider making a site so it looks more legit

Okay, but did you give him a reason to even PM you about a RAT in general? Did you ask for a RAT in the RAT'ing section, etc?

I didnt ask for a RAT. I only asked for problems with Portforwarding.

DoubleClickBTC - September 18, 2016, 5:07 am

With dropper detection its safe to assume its a RAT that has been crypted with a outdated stub.
