Could you be refering to a DNS Amplification attack?

<https://blog.cloudflare.com/deep-inside-a-dns-amplification-ddos-attack/>

It looks like you are describing a DDoS attack that works at a Web application level, but that is pretty specific according to how the app works. I guess that at a application level it could be triggered with Server Side Request Forgery attack.

It's called a open redirect DDoS attack.

A article can be found here:

Thanks for this, this was new to me ?

Unless OP redefines his Questions with atleast a little better spelling (common, this cant be that hard in times of google and online translators), i can't help here as i do not understand what his question is about.

Cheers, Gee.

You must be referring to the HULK method which was a meme for awhile.
