

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Who's Your Favourite Author?

Gachi - September 15, 2016, 3:44 am

Most of you don't even read books, why did you click on this thread?

If some of you do read books, who's your favourite author and what's your favourite book by said author.

?ersace - September 15, 2016, 3:45 am

Harambe's guide getting female gorilla's.

Account of the Gods - September 15, 2016, 3:46 am i dont read books because I think there are more enjoyable things like games, drugs, sex, sport, satisfaction - this really drives me but when a girl is reading books in her leisure time thats sexy man

Angelus - September 15, 2016, 3:58 am

Stephen King

J.K Rowling

J.R.R Tolkein

Rick Riordan

Michael Scott

Im into the Fiction genre for sure, Ive read a ton of good books for sure

LastSession - September 15, 2016, 6:36 am

Ken Follet, Johann W. von Goethe, George Orwell and Dan Brown(because Illuminati aroused my interest for reading)

Gachi - September 15, 2016, 6:43 am

(Sep 15, 2016 03:58 AM)?Angelus Mørtis? Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Stephen King

J.K Rowling

J.R.R Tolkein

Rick Riordan

Michael Scott

Im into the Fiction genre for sure, Ive read a ton of good books for sure

I'm really into fiction myself aswell, however I've never read any books from authors whos books have been developed into movies.

I've also never heard of Michael Scott, might check out some of his books. Always nice getting a new author to look into.

LastSession - September 15, 2016, 6:44 am

(Sep 15, 2016 06:43 AM)Gachi Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I'm really into fiction myself aswell, however I've never read any books from authors whos books have been developed into movies.

Why? How does that decrease the quality of the book?

Gachi - September 15, 2016, 6:46 am

(Sep 15, 2016 06:36 AM)LastSession Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Ken Follet, Johann W. von Goethe, George Orwell and Dan Brown(because Illuminati aroused my interest for reading)

The Da Vinci Code and such a like have always peaked my interest aswell, I think I'm going to get into Ken Follet's and Dan Browns books after I read through a few other authors.

(Sep 15, 2016 06:44 AM)LastSession Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Why? How does that decrease the quality of the book?

Oh no, it's nothing like that. I personally like imaging what I'm reading in my head if it's a book that allows me to to do that, after I watch a movie I'm not able to do that.

But with that being said, most people come to the general consensus that the books are better than the movies.

LastSession - September 15, 2016, 6:50 am

(Sep 15, 2016 06:46 AM)Gachi Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) The Da Vinci Code and such a like have always peaked my interest aswell, I think I'm going to get into Ken Follet's and Dan Browns books after I read through a few other authors.

Oh no, it's nothing like that. I personally like imaging what I'm reading in my head if it's a book that allows me to to do that, after I watch a movie I'm not able to do that.

But with that being said, most people come to the general consensus that the books are better than the movies.

It was extremely easy to guess how the storyline goes when you read Sakrileg but well.. The movies are good too.

Fidel Castro - September 15, 2016, 8:35 am

Paulo Coelho beats aprox any other writter out there, The Alchemist a really fantastic and psychology-catchy book!

Nyx- - September 15, 2016, 8:39 am i really like David Eddings. hes a fantasy author.

SIM-2228224 - September 15, 2016, 8:48 am

Marc Brown, yes from the Arthur books. The only books I ever really enjoyed reading tbh. Good times.

Fabian - September 15, 2016, 4:41 pm

Hank Moody if you know what i mean

sucet pop - September 15, 2016, 4:59 pm

I've loved Charles Bukowski since sixth grade and I a lot owe of decadent behaviors to him and Keith Richards.

My Computer

"what?" they say, "you got a
computer?"

it's like I have sold out to the enemy.

I had no idea so many people were prejudiced against computers.

even two editors have written me letters about the computer.

one disparaged the computer in a mild and superior way.
the other seemed genuinely pissed.

I am aware that a computer can't create
a poem.
but neither can a typewriter.

yet, still, once or twice a week
I hear:
"what?
you have a
computer?
you?"

yes, I do
and I sit up here
almost every night,
sometimes with beer or wine, sometimes without and I work the
computer.
the damn thing
even corrects
my spelling.

and the poems
come flying
out,
better than ever.

I have no idea what causes
all this computer
prejudice.

me?
I want to go
the next step beyond the
computer.
I'm sure it's
there.

and when I get
it,
they'll say,
"hey, you hear,
Chinaski got a space-biter!"

"what?"

"yes, it's true!"

"I can't believe
it!"

and I'll also have some beer or some wine
or maybe nothing
at all
and I'll be 85 years old driving it home
to you and me
and to the little girl
who lost her sheep.
or her
computer.~

My favorites are the short stories illustrated by R Crumb.

(Sep 15, 2016 04:41 PM)Fabian Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Hank Moody if you know what i mean Californication!!

Lithe - September 15, 2016, 5:07 pm

I'd absolutely recommend Steelheart by Brandon Sanderson to everyone here. By far the greatest book I've ever read (Actually caused me to pre-order the second and third books in the series - something I've never done)

Incredible characters and honestly just an all around perfect book.

And for fans of James Dashner (Writer of the Maze Runner), he has another series called the Mortality Doctrine that revolves around "True" virtual reality and video games and it's also incredible.

Elue - September 15, 2016, 5:09 pm

Rick Riordan is my Favourite Author

Xerxes - September 15, 2016, 5:11 pm

John Stanford. Every book he writes is fantastic.

edit; second pick, Jack Higgins or David Wilcock

Gachi - September 15, 2016, 5:14 pm

(Sep 15, 2016 08:35 AM)Tsukishima Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Paulo Coelho beats aprox any other writer out there, The Alchemist a really fantastic and psychology-catchy book!

I've never heard of him before, I guess I don't read enough. It's interesting to see The Alchemist got translated into 80 different languages, the book must be as good as you say.

(Sep 15, 2016 08:39 AM)Nyx- Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) i really like David Eddings. hes a fantasy author.

I've actually read one of his Tamuli books. Also that rep is amazing.

(Sep 15, 2016 08:48 AM)Adempus Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Marc Brown, yes from the Arthur books. The only books I ever really enjoyed reading tbh. Good times.

I had no idea about the author behind Arthur, I never really watched or enjoyed the show when I was younger.

(Sep 15, 2016 08:53 AM)Focus Broken Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Tolkien and Tolstoy are amazing.

Couple of LOTR fans I see, I've also never heard of Leo Tolstoy but his book The Death of Ivan Ilyich seems interesting.

(Sep 15, 2016 04:59 PM)sucet pop Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) ~

Charles Bukowski himself looks like quite the character.

sucet pop - September 15, 2016, 6:42 pm

(Sep 15, 2016 05:14 PM)Gachi Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Bukowski himself looks like quite the character.

Oh, for sure.

I checked online and couldn't find and PDFs of the Bukowski Crumb collabs. I ganked some jpegs and made a PDF if anyone is interested...

drive[WARNING POSSIBLY

INFECTED]google.com/file/d/0B5DWWvi24xjdTjZ4QjJmUkY5dXc/view?usp=sharing

Gachi - September 20, 2016, 9:23 am

Good to see a few people on HF read books.

Doctor Fate - September 20, 2016, 10:55 am

If you like fantasy my favorite book of all time is The Name of the Wind by Patrick Rothfuss.