So since Payivy went out of business or whatever, and aiobuy doesn't seem that stable anymore and all the others I know suck, what processor do you guys use?
Looking for one that can handle Netseal and Affiliates preferably.

Yup. Check out <https://rocketr.net>

We're very active and always working on new things that not only make it easier for you to sell, but make it easier for you to market your products.

These always seem to be "beta" or "coming soon" in every processing website that eventually go down.

Unsure. It's not something we're actively working on at this time.

I'm working on a marketplace/autobuy website for accounts and codes soon, been in development for about 2 months!

But I don't know many options, which is why I wanted to make one.

It will. Disclaimer: we do take a small fee on sales for Bitcoin/Perfect Money (We don't take fees on PayPal). Click here to see more info on that. These fees ensure that we can continue for a long time by paying for our servers and ads.

Rocketr is not going away.

What features are you looking for in an affiliate system?

Xez - September 19, 2016, 6:34 pm

Feel free to check out HexPay. It's free to use and has tons of useful features including PDF stamping, paypal tracking, coupons and netseal to name a few.

Feel free to let me know if you have any suggestions :)

So I can assign a registered user to products, and give each user a desired % or default % for that product.

Also unique product link for them of course, and maybe if so fancy, unique affiliate store page, so if I have an affiliate selling more then one of my products he can get a unique affiliate store page.

I don't know really, would just like to be able to give an affiliate % of sale.

Rocketr is amazing. Tracks everything about your customer. NETSEAL integrated feature and a nice clean theme.
