Thread: How to withdraw bitcoin straight to a Visa card!

Danny Khalifa - September 28, 2016, 2:20 pm

Ever wondered on how to withdraw BitCoins to debitcard? It is really easy and working.

This tutorial is for people who don't have BTC Banks in their country or just who can't withdraw BTC to cash.

? First of all, we need to create an account on this site: <https://cryptopay.me>
Sign up using your real information.

? Then, you will have to order a plastic credit card it costs 15$ but trust me, it's really worth it.

? To order a card, click here: https://cryptopay.me/card_orders/new

You can choose between a plastic one or a virtual card.

The card will be shipped to you in 3-4 weeks, or if you choose the premium shipping, it will take at max. a week.

? If you want to get 25% discount to the card, please send me a PM!

? Once you get the card, you have to activate it. There are the instructions on the paper that you will get with your plastic card.

? To deposit money on your credit card, you will need first to send money to your BTC address in this site, so click on Deposit.

Spoiler (Click to View)

[img]<http://image.prntscr.com/image/988dcd5e28a14644876e73e1023562c2.png>[/img]

? Then, after the payment is confirmed, you can load the money on your card.
It will be instant and will take about 0.10$ fees.

This card, can be used for almost everything because it's visa. You can either link a virtual credit card to your PayPal account, and withdraw the money easily.

It has fees, but atleast, it works good and it's worth it.

If you have some questions about the method on how to withdraw money from PayPal or even BTC to the visa card, do not hesitate to PM me!

I hope this is helpful for someone who didn't knew about this.

Sounds interesting man, nice find! Thanks for sharing!

some_dude13 - September 28, 2016, 10:14 pm

In case some people don't know, this card needs Identity Verification otherwise it will be limited, limits are $400 per withdrawal and $1000 withdrawal total until verified, this is pretty standard, if verified limits are much, much higher.

Another note, while I personally haven't used it, I've heard good things about the Advcash Card. It's cheaper, $5 for the plastic card and doesn't charge a maintenance fee, they do charge exchange fees but they seem lower than most. It's the best I found when I researched, but I haven't ordered one yet because I don't have enough bitcoin yet to really use it.

Fidel Castro - September 29, 2016, 1:30 am

Im gonna give it a try for sure, sounds promising.

This is so great charges less than what my bank does

This charges you $1.00 monthly fee (*The monthly service fee is not charged when there are no transactions on the card during the current month) and $2.50 for each domestic withdrawal only thing about is you can only withdraw 400$ instead of 500$ daily which is not that bad...

Thanks for this OP!!

You can withdraw up to $2,500 if you are unverified and up to $10,000 if you are verified.
Also there are more differences.
Of course it's better to get verified.

If you're in UK and want to use a pretty decent 'bank' to have your bitcoin on too

Join Monzo (This has replaced my main card mostly, love travelling with this)

Use a virtual card on cryptopay, load btc onto it and use the virtual card to upload to your monzo account.

Monzo is in the process of becoming a fully fledged bank, 24/7 instant replies to support. Love them and have loaded nearly 36,000 onto it over course of 6 months with no issues whatsoever, have used it worldwide too.

This is mainly for those who don't like to carry too many cards, or don't like to leave money in unsecure cards etc

Exactly.

That's how it works.

You get an address for your Plastic card, you send on it, wait for confirmations (You can check confirmations on site), and once you have enough confirmations, you can go to ATM and withdraw.

Ships everywhere but the US mate, to comply with the KYC law if you do not verify your ID the limit is;

€1000 - Unverified

Unlimited - Verified

You also have top up limits if you are unverified also.

There is the verified limits. Very good card, but cryptopay is the most expensive when it comes to fees/topping up. Even direct BTC to card, you need to pay to load and I cant remember if they take a % of the original deposit.

As I remember when you order the card, you have to upload a picture of your ID verification.

Otherwise you can't get the card.

Does Op know or anyone else for that matter who may have used theses cards and Verified what happens with your personal info once you submit it. For example if I register my card will that info go onto my credit check just like any other credit or debit card. Where does this info show up and how can it be searched for?

cryptopay.com (also called e-coin) hold and locks me over $1,000 right now (can show live proof via teamviewer if needed) I can login and all but can't use it, they require verification documents for no reason as it's all btc, which makes no sense for bitcoin site! so be aware guys! I can show all proofs inc emails if needed!

p.s. Support doesn't help at all be aware!

I'm thinking about ordering this. Is this one the best? I'm mainly interested in fees when withdrawing from ATM. it says 2.95 eur, So for example if i withdrew 500 eur, i would get 502.95 btc reduced from my address? is that correct? Also, what about exchange rate, which one it uses to determine price of btc/eur

There are 3 types of cards.

GBP, EUR, USD.

Once you make an account, you'll see in the left top corner the price btc/usd,euro,gbp.

All the questions about fees you have, you can find the answers here.
