Thread: Marshmallow is trash

We can expect some bugs with new updates but seriously?

My phone is verizon gsm locked so you are practically tortured with pop ups until you update. I never though that a new OS update would be this shit. Let me explain.

MAJOR performance issues: I cant even log into FB half the time let alone play clash royale or any game app that requires some data usage. My phone will barely flip through pages on the home screen and is consistently overheating.

Huge issues with apps: Using Ccleaner now requires you to manually delete cache from apps. Thats right you have to go into every app and clear cache and saved data individually.

Thats all I have for now but unless you want your phone to become a 2 lb (Grams for you eurofags) brick then I highly suggest you do not update your phone

Again, I repeat no new OS is perfect but this is absolute trash.

I'm jelly af. Lollipop was amazing, worked flawlessly and now I can't even get my phone to reply to messenger half the fucking time.

Chances are you will get some sort of new device or discounted upgrade. Or, move to iPhones.

You seem to be alone in your issues. Please specify what device you're using so people can try to help.

One solution that might help is a clean install, or even a cleaned version of whatever stock ROM you're using (AKA one with the bloatware pulled out), as OTAs can often be problematic.

In addition, Facebook for Android is widely known for its shoddy performance, it might help to use a wrapper instead. (Like Metal, for example.)
