Occultic;Nine

Synopsis courtesy of MAL

The "paranormal science" story follows nine idiosyncratic individuals, linked by the "Chojo Kagaku Kirikiri Basara" occult summary blog run by 17-year-old second-year high school student Yuta Gamon. Little incongruities that occur around these nine eventually lead to a larger, unimaginable event that may alter what is considered common sense in this world.

I don't know how to feel about that first episode. Like 65% of the episode was boring as hell. There were a couple obvious moments that piqued my interest though. The show kind of reminds me of a mix between Steins;Gate and Durarara. I have a feeling it will get interesting but I know it's going to be dialogue heavy.

I thought I'd get something more like Steins;gate but the amount of dialogue really ruined it.

Occultic;Nine is a really fast paced anime. It is really good and really interesting. I definitely recommend watching it and keeping up with the season!

Now for the discussion part (like legit, don't read unless you watched the latest episode) (you have been warned) :

Spoiler (Click to View) I think that all of them are dead. I think all of them were in that experiment and my friend noticed that all of them got phone calls at some point in the show. I guess they were given orders or something to kill themselves because that number of death would make the barrier between the spirit realm and the real realm really short so people can live forever.

Can't wait for the next episode!

Posting here so I remember to watch this.

I love animes about supernatural/occult stuff.

I particularly like the song, though the visuals are just basic.
