Omniscient - October 4, 2016, 12:23 pm

Now all IMG tags require HTTPS in order to work.

So if you have any threads with image tags I suggest you edit the posts now.

For convenience I have added a word filter for i.imgur.com which automatically converts the link to HTTPS.

If you know of other popular image upload sites that support HTTPS please post them and I can add them to the filter.

Cool, I've seen people use PostImage and Tiny pic, but I don't think Tiny pic supports https.

Imgur is probably the best Image host since they erase Exif data once images are uploaded.

Some of the known ones that I've seen used around.

I only use Imgur and Gyazo, I try to stay with Imgur though as it's so clean compared to other hosts.

Just noticed this when I viewed my thread, nice change - I'm now using imgur :)

prntscr.com doesn't support https, so all <https://image.prntscr.com/image/xxxxxxxxxxx.png> images are broken.

Not an image website but could you add:

<https://myanimelist.net>

Pretty much all the threads in the AA section with pictures/covers of Anime takes them from there.

ZuGgY - October 4, 2016, 3:14 pm

Always have used imgur. But thanks for letting us know!

m4dh4ck3r - October 4, 2016, 4:13 pm

<https://puu.sh> a few people use this for sharing screenshots from PC's. Just changing it to https works fine.

Light - October 4, 2016, 4:15 pm

Would be nice to see services used a lot such as puu.sh and maybe stuff like that image service above that the "AA" section uses, to make it easier on people if it was automatic as well.

Omniscient - October 4, 2016, 4:34 pm

Already did pu.sh service and the cdn.myanimelist.net.

Awesome, thanks Omni.

These are not strictly image hosting (they allow other files) but their links are direct:

- 1) <https://pomf.is/>
- 2) <https://pomf.cat/>

Also this image host (<https://imgsafe.org/>) uses it :)

Thanks for notifying. Postimage and gyazo.
