Thread: How many ads have you blocked?

ze-slade - October 8, 2016, 5:38 pm

Me personally I've blocked almost 200,000 and I've been using adblock on this PC for about two years.

Switch to uBlock Origin if ya know what's good for you, it's that new shit. 196,000 on uBlock but I just built this PC a few weeks ago.

I'm not sure about you but when I was using AdBlock youtube videos would either load slow or they would sometimes just give me an error when the ads were blocked, with uBlock they just load right away no ads. Beyond that it is just a superior adblocker in my opinion.

I suspect most of the ads are from youtube since I usually have a youtube tab open which racks up hundreds of blocked ads easily.

ZuGgY - October 8, 2016, 6:54 pm

At just over 100,000 but I've reset my browser, re-installed the browser so many times, resetting it each time, so probably well over 5,000,000 by now.

CyberneticTitan - October 9, 2016, 1:03 am

Those numbers do not represent total number of adblocks, but rather the number of web requests blocked by the adblocker that can include anything from Google Analytics to full blown video ads.

Any how, on my laptop that I've used for two months, I've blocked 100k requests.

You should disable it once on a porn site when you reach the age of 18 and start watching porn legally.

Your browser will stop responding and the only option will be running DBAN.
