Nice mate really like it!

Only thing that bothers and maybe not you is the cable mess. And also I am not a fan of the keyboard under the desk..

But still really nice and if you are happy with it then its great

Argyl - October 13, 2016, 5:13 pm

Looking swag man! And yeah the cable mess xD I got those mesh sleeves for all mine. 100 times better now for me.

Haha yeah man the cables really bother me aswell. Gonna work on that but for now I'm swapping my PlayStation Xbox and my desktop on that monitor so the cable mess is inevitable.

Good setup, I was expecting a custom build at first lmao. I cringe when 2 monitors aren't the same but if it works for you, it works man.

I don't really use dual monitors much unless I'm working on a project for school. So the 2 monitors don't bother me because ones for browsing while I'm gaming.

Also I was gonna buy 2 of the 27 inch but I can't stand playing games on that big of a monitor so I decided one was sufficient :)

Defo should have built your own computer for that money, that pre-build doesn't even seem to have a proper GPU.

The screens are pretty meme to.

I don't game on it so what purpose would a custom build be for me?

I bought the desktop to run a program for my business.

Also for the monitor not sure what u mean:

<http://www.bestbuy.com/site/hp-27-ips-led-hd-monitor-natural-silver/5029800.p?skuld=5029800>

the other monitor is just a random one ive had for years that is small enough but big enough for gaming.

Mi2414 - October 13, 2016, 5:28 pm

Really like that desk, been trying to find a good one that I like. I been upgrading my PC slowly over the years, just recently got a GTX 970.

TYLER - October 13, 2016, 10:00 pm

I would have used the $1,000 you spent on a pre-built HP desktop for one you build yourself. Nice setup nonetheless.
