Thread: Ultimate Doxing - Ep.9 - Gamertag Doxing

After rigorous thinking I've decided to make these methods public because no one really buys it anymore anyways since I'm sure a lot of people already know it.

Method 4. The Ubisoft Method

If the gamertag played games like assassins creed or watch dogs, there's a large chance they have a Ubisoft account associated with their gamertag. Their phone number is 919-460-9778. You simply call and have them search the account by gamertag how you see them similar to the other methods is up to you. I won't spoonfeed you exact scripts because you won't learn that way. Ubisoft accounts only contain Name and Email that's it.

Method 5. The EA Method

This method is known by so many people it was like the first third party doxing method to pull emails that was figured out. You can call EA support at 650-628-1393 and if that number doesn't work since they change it somewhat frequently simply look for the HQ number and have them transfer you to EA support. You have them search the account by gamertag and you can get Name and Email like the other methods, it only works if the gamertag has played EA games of course.

All these methods have been tested and confirmed working, I haven't done a few of these in awhile but they definitely should still be working. I'm sure a lot of people are gonna get creative and mess around with these and maybe even find other third party methods on their own. A lot of people are also gonna be happy that they will be able to dox tags again.

EDIT: Just gonna keep 4 and 5 public.

I always call Paypal or Amazon if they have either of those accounts I know of. Considering this is for gamertags, it's good.

Ebay and Nordstrom is good for pulling info as well a lot of people don't really try Nordstrom accounts.
