Thread: [PaxHosting.com | Brand New Hosting Service \[Top-Notch\]](#)

Mons - October 15, 2016, 5:46 am

My experienced professional team and I will be launching a new hosting business soon.

Our services include but are not limited to:

- Webhosting
- Domain Registration
- VPS Servers
- Gaming Servers
- VoIP Servers (TeamSpeak etc.)
- Impregnable DDoS Protection
- Pentesting Services
- Ticket System, Live Chat, E-mail & Skype Support

We will be accepting the following payment methods:

PayPal
Bitcoin
Credit Card
Bank Transfer
Skrill
Perfect Money
Amazon Gift Card
Western Union
Paysafecard

This makes for an amazing solution if you are looking to host a website and secure it thoroughly and protect it against DDoS protection. Our enterprise grade server and network hardware will provide you with the best hosting solution for your website and 99%+ uptime.

The market is already flooded with HF users who don't know how to manage servers or navigate a Linux box who think they can sell hosting. We don't need another one.

If I wanted to buy hosting off of someone who doesn't know what the hell they're talking about, I'd go with Craze.

I haven't been able to determine if he actually thinks this is going to work or if this thread is a troll. He's not fooling anyone, it's clear he doesn't know a thing about hosting.

He's also deleted and reposted the "today is the day" post like 3 or 4 times now. Edit: actually maybe I'm wrong, the other post still exists. It's just been "a few more hours" for a few days now.

he was asking me for sources to buy servers

how to do tax

how to do business registration

how to advertise

literally everything, he was saying how cost is nothing to him so when i offered to write up a full scale marketing plan for $100 he was like "yeah thats nothing can i ask you somep questions first?" so he asked all these questions about hosting company thinking i was gonna write it up for free lmao

I'm just waiting for the day he runs into errors with his server(s). Setting up a hosting company is incredibly easy. Knowing how to manage your Linux servers and fix errors when they inevitably occur is much more complicated. That's how 90% of HF hosting companies fail. Major error, none of their "How to set up a hosting company" google guides tell them how to fix it. Total data loss for customers. Bail with the money earned. Based on the threads I've seen posted about Mons in the past, it's clear he can't manage servers himself. Hopefully, for his sake and his customers, he has someone decent on his payroll doing all the work for him.

The only reason I got back into hosting after my time away was due to the servers I had stacked up in my garage. I'd probably make more money just selling them straight up, but I enjoyed it as well, so I restarted. Took 3 months to see profit again, but things are going well enough now.

How... You literally just said you're only doing Windows. You've already failed if that's your business plan.

Your only customers will be other people like you who don't know how to use Linux and are stuck using shitty windows. Nobody wants to host their shit on Windows.

Now HF has you and Craze Hosting "revolutionizing" the hosting market, yet neither of you know how to run Linux servers and only offer Windows VPS'. What in the world has caused you to think this is revolutionizing the market, using an inferior operating system?

Unfortunately the person I left in charge of my company while I was away didn't manage the backup server. He received 6 months of daily emails notifying him of an error, and he ignored it. Eventually something errored out, customer data was lost and the only back up he had was 6 months old. We had a good thing going, profit was over $1.5k a month, and he carelessly through it away.

You're missing the point, just go back to dominating the SST market, because we all know how fucking amazing you are :), I haven't seen your scam reports recently, but shouldn't refunding people the money you stole be more important than starting yet another "business" (if you can call it that) to rip more people off? So, as a potential "business" owner, are you ready to lose money for at least the first 6 months? Most businesses starting out require lot of investment and ability to sustain even when losing money before able to turn a successful profit, are you prepared to take this loss? Or are you just going to run and sell it when it gets tough?

You sound like someone who tried this business but failed badly and now is jealous that someone else is going to do this and succeed.

When can we expect the launch of this amazing new service by the one and only?

Actually, I run 3 businesses, all successful in the hosting industry, and I lost money for 7 months, then after 7 entire months I started making profit as I learned to adjust my business strategy, anywho, I'm not afraid of competition, I'm going to bet your offline within 6 months or sold. ? See you on the flip side, mate.

This makes for an amazing solution if you are looking to host a website and secure it thoroughly and protect it against DDoS protection. Our enterprice grade server and network hardware will provide you with the best hosting solution for your website and 99%+ uptime.

"and protect it against DDoS protection."

Yeah you aren't going to make any sales, you seem like the type of person that just throws money at things but really knows nothing.

Don't wanna "sales trash" on the actual sales thread, but what the fuck have you been doing all this time?

Just from potential customer's POV, you are selling SSL while you're not using it yourself (I mean you're not on https://), also your favicon is non existent, your logo is just ????, main navigation broken (Try clicking on "products"), seems like the package you're offering on your main page is non existent aswell, according to Niveus, the over animation is just disgusting, it makes me leave the site from motion sickness.

Anyways, it took you too long to publish this half-ass made page, I literally don't know what you were doing, 'cause design isn't something you had put on your checklist, refer to

<https://www.themechilly.com/aceorbit-html5-web-hosting-template>

Seems like just another project you're hiring underpaid and unexperienced people to do and will prolly fail miserably just like khmnetkhmkhmstresser did

That, is fucking disgusting.

Shit free templates, seriously? How are you going to dominate the market with shit templates? Your site isn't even SSL by default, pathetic, that logo is fucking ugly as shit, and your navigation is broken to beat hell, your site lacks a lot of functionality, and overall a two year old could of done better.

Advice:

1. Get a new design made, have it completely custom made

- [illegible]

To make this clear, this isn't sales trashing, it's feedback.

HostSlayer - October 26, 2016, 8:29 pm

(No offense but this <https://i.imgur.com/3mCdHq4.png> is the ugliest pricing box i've ever seen, and the big circle reminds me of that fingerbox where u are scared of putting your finger inside, and i get purchase anxiety flashbacks)

#2 Fix your logo freelancer.net/upwork $50-$150

#3 Don't hire HF people to do professional GFX(no offense to HF gfx, you just aren't that good compared to actual designers)

#4 remember that big things have small beginnings
