Thread: HTML made a contact form, code after form gets put into the box for message.

Rezy - October 15, 2016, 6:39 am

Could anyone help me with this.

The problem is that i get the contact form looks like this:

Spoiler (Click to View)

```
Code i use: Code <center><form action="contact.php" method="post">
   Your name
  <input type="text" name="cf_name">
  Your e-mail
  <input type="text" name="email">
Subject
  <input type="text" name="subject">
   Message
  <textarea name="message">
</form></center>
```

```
<h2>call us on +27 79 334 4885,
Business hours 8am-4pm</h2>
```

Spoiler (Click to View) i know "possible" is spelled wrong.

Probably this is what you need. If yes, please close all html tags next time.

```
Code <center><form action="contact.php" method="post">
   Your name
  <input type="text" name="cf_name"></input>
  Your e-mail
  <input type="text" name="email"></input>
Subject
  <input type="text" name="subject"></input>
   Message
  <textarea name="message"></textarea>
  <button type="button" name="submit">Submit</button>
</form>
```

```
<h2>call us on +27 79 334 4885
Business hours 8am-4pm</h2></center>
```

No, the "input" tag don't need to be closed(idk why I did it lol), textarea need to be closed, because:

Code <input type="text" name="subject">Text here -> the text outside of the textbox

<textarea name="message">Text here -> the text inside the textbox
