Is adding like 5 mb of junk code to your logger good? What exactly does it do; does it just make the user think its a legit file or does the AV get tricked as well?

Thanks guys

I used to do this with game setups. My stub was like 300kb big and I just pumped it a few megabytes You don't trick AVs with that lol, rather the opposite. Just crypt your file before you pump it and you should be fine.
