

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: [\[NOOB FRIENDLY\] HOW TO BAN ANY SKYPE ACCOUNT || 10 EASY STEPS!](#)

Frankey - October 18, 2016, 4:04 am

Hello, and welcome! So today I decided to write a guide on how to ban a Skype account. I checked around to see if this method was already posted, and I found nothing, well a few things but they werent really good neither did I understand them. This method I found while looking it up on Google. I have no idea who the original owner is. But Im sharing it with you beautifull people <3

Step 1) Create a new Skype account.

You will first need to make a new Skype account. I will explain why you need this later. Keep in mind: the name of your Skype account doesn't matter. You can make it whatever you want for now.

For whatever reason, you may feel uneasy about signing up for Skype using an active email. When in doubt, use a disposable email. I've listed some down below:

<http://10minutemail.com/>

<http://disposableinbox.com/>

<https://www.guerrillamail.com/>

<https://temp-mail.org/en/>

<http://www.throwawaymail.com/>

Step 2) Change your Skype name

Once that's done, change your Skype display name as the person you want to ban. E.g. if the persons name is "BagOfSwag", you need to go into your Skype settings and change it to the same thing.

Step 3) Change your Avatar

Like the display name, you need to change your profile avatar to the same avatar as your victim. The goal here is to make your Skype look exactly like the victims. There are a couple ways to about this. One way would be to simply screenshot the avatar right off his/her Skype profile, assuming they have one in the first place. When I used this method, I mainly took screenshots of the image since it's much more efficient. A good program to use would be Gyazo.

Step 4) Contact between Skype accounts

At this point you will need to have your secondary account add your primary account. Note: It's crucial that it's done in that order.

Step 5) Begin an abusive Convo

Now we need to have an abusive conversation between both accounts. For this to be more efficient, you may want to utilize two devices for contact to minimize having to sign in-and-out of accounts.

Step 6) Screenshot Skype details

This step is a bit tricky. You will need to screenshot your secondary Skype's details right next to your actual victims profile. To do this, you look up the victims Skype account (via your Skype app) in the search bar. Go to their profile. Click somewhere on his/her avatar or name bar, and a contact detail window will pop up. Once it's open, you click back to the abusive chat between your fake accounts, and screenshot the real user's detail window next to the chat.

Step 7) Report your Victim's Skype account.

Now you need to report your victim's Skype account. First, navigate in your browser to the Skype Support page here. Make sure you are signed in with your primary account. When you are on this page, go the drop down box, and select "Security & Privacy" Now you will be confronted with another drop down box. Select "Spam / Adult Content" Click next, and click "Text Chat Support"

Step 8) Talk with a rep.

A chat window will open, and you will be talking with a representative from Skype. He/she will ask you for your account details, and the email associated with your primary account, ect. Tell him/her you are being harassed, and ask them if there is something that can be done about your victims account. Be sure to tell him/her that this person has been harassing you on other social media as well, and your victim has now moved to Skype. The goal is to sound vulnerable and hurt. The stronger your S.E. game is, the better. Once telling the rep what he/she needs to know, he/she will take the email provided, and will email you a support ticket.

Step 9) Uploading your screenshot.

Here is the easy part. All you need to do now is go to the email sent to you by Skype's support representative, and respond to your ticket. In the ticket they sent you, they will ask for proof that you are being harassed by your victim. Since we already assembled the screenshot in step #6, you simply attach it to the email, and send it off.

Step 10) Waiting on the Ban

I would like to congratulate you! You have successfully completed all the steps in this tutorial. Now all you have to do is wait for your victim's Skype account to be closed. This can take anywhere from 2 hours, to 48 hours depending on how busy Skype's support is. Once the Skype account is "banned" it will still be in your contacts, and you can still send messages to it. It is technically locked, but will be fully banned and pruned after 30 days.

If you like this you can check out my signature, hehe

cli??? ???? - October 19, 2016, 1:58 am

Thank you is still working, banned a scammer <3

Conundrum Account - October 19, 2016, 2:02 am

In theory this sounds like it would work. Thanks for sharing.

oneceno - October 19, 2016, 2:32 am i need help on how to upload pony1.9 to cpanel