What do you guys think about this video? I know it isn't a real anime but I consider it a pretty good and legitimate short film. Personally I don't really like dubstep/future bass but Porter Robinson has always been one of my favorite artists, and he has a lot of songs that were influenced by Japanese culture.

Here's some more by him:

I must say that song was pretty good. That animation was really good too. A-1 Pictures is pretty renown for their vibrant animation. I wonder how much Porter Robinson had to pay them to have it made. Probably an ass load. Really cool to see he went that route for a music video though. +1 respect.

Was literally just about to share this before I saw your thread. That song is probably my favorite song right now and I enjoyed the shit out of this.

Nice share OP ;) I don't really listen to that genre of music too often, but the animation was nice ;)

Apparently there is also a MAL page for it: <https://myanimelist.net/anime/34240/Shelter>

It was an A-1 pictures production, it was bound to have a page sometime

I'm pretty sure it's something that the studios and future music artists would want to venture into considering how fast this video was trending.

Haven't listened to him before watching the music video, but the whole thing was very well done, and gave some real emotion. Definitely recommend you guys check out the behind the scenes on Crunchyroll's channel.

Just realized that I spelled Crunchyroll as Cruncyroll in the title and no one noticed it ???

??? I spelt it like that as well on my closed thread. I'm pretty sure it's an iOS Autocorrect thing.

It was on my computer actually, I copied and pasted the title but it was too long so I had to change some things and misspelled it.
