Thread: [\[Orcus Remote Administrator \] ::// Licenses not received after purchase.](#)

Armada - October 20, 2016, 10:54 am

So to keep this short and simple.

Users are unable to receive licenses after purchase.

Why?

We are experiencing an issue with our host who serves the licensing server and database. Although they are working with me support has been limited.

Why the limitation?

Although Orcus is a registered business and Sorzus and myself have equal access to the resources, we registered components separately in development.

So whats the problem?

My business partner, Sorzus, who is the registered legal owner of the licensing server account is on vacation. Being we have never experienced an issue like this before, it was overlooked to pass the login and account details to myself.

Without those auth codes, Support can only assist me so far.

What is the ETA to resolution?

I wish I actually had a time frame for this, they (support) have been trying diligently to assist in the problem, however being our licensing manager is an application and in house code they can not assist without the actual coders input. I have been told they believe they are close to resolution, however no ETA is available yet.

Sorzus is due back by this weekend if I am not mistaken however.

To my customers:

I am greatly sorry for this inconvenience.

On the good side, already registered users are unaffected and still able to operate the software as directed. - I would not attempt new machine registration at this point however until we resolve this technical issue.

Those users who do not wish to await for resolution, may PM me for a refund for their purchase, please provide payment method and registered email.

Best Regards.

If this was a problem do you not think with all the attention Orcus has gotten in media and other venues Omni would not have shit all over me by now?

This is a update on WTF is happening with Orcus licensing, not a question of whether I am allowed to do this. If you are not a customer, or buyer, or are otherwise unaffected by this, please don't shit post. Thanks.

Well, IF YOU WANT TO SPLIT HAIRS

Yes, technically Orcus COULD in theory be utilized for DDoS through stress testing functionality.

However, this is not a SST service, it is an application function, in which the end consumer would need the amount of machines and connections to make an effective attack.

Your selling Ozone which offers HVNC. Do as you will, you were included in the other RAT owners efforts to curb such abuse, but we got no reply. ?

Would further request this remain on topic, if you have something to address, PM me please. You also got my Skype.

Why is it important to mention numerous times that Orcus is a legally registered whatever, as if that changes anything?

because we all know nothing is gonna happen to them legally because of the amount of times he states its a legally registered company.

Still trying to work with support, they realize how much dependence is on this critical service for us, however, as already noted, can not perform certain actions without the authorized account holders permission.

I can guarantee this will not happen again however.

Sincerest apologies for everyone waiting, refunds are possible if requested. ?

r1ngr00t - October 22, 2016, 1:54 pm

I'd probably want a refund if the license wont be working by Monday. Did you mention the developer gets home this weekend?

Yes he is due home any day now.

I fucking PRAY we can resolve this once the access codes are available to the licensing account.

Sorzus has returned from vacation and is working on it now. I hope to have this resolved today. Apologies to everyone for the delay, this problem happened at the literal worst possible time for us.

Sweet sounds great! Assuming it is working today, will we just get an email with our licenses now or do I need to email you with my order number and such?

Yes once the license server is operating again I will go through all outstanding purchases and issue the licenses as usual. I will make a post to his thread once we have resolved the problem. If users do not receive a license 12-24 hours after my resolution post please PM me the payment email and transaction type. With the back log I have to deal with, it is possible someone might get missed, and I do not want to keep anyone waiting any longer than they already have been.

It got late in Germany, developer needed sleep as well.

I have offered a refund to anyone who is unwilling to wait it out.

Please have patience, I assure you of a resolution soon.

Armada - October 25, 2016, 8:03 am

We have resolved the issue and I am starting on issuing licenses now.

Please be patient as I have quite a few to do here. If you have not received your license within 24 hours of this posting please PM me your email address used, payment method and transaction ID.

Again, we apologize for the issues, should not happen again.
