Thread: Hacked a website for a user, no who.is protection... Story.

Mr. Robot - October 20, 2016, 4:24 pm

So basically I hacked a couple websites for some users, and they wanted me to redirect the traffic to their site.

Turns out 3/4 of the users had 0 who.is protection, the other person decided to contact the other site owner using his personal email and tell him he did it and he can "go fuck himself and don't mess with him or his Krew"

What is this life?

Who even registers a website with real information anyway, when I registered my first domain I make it look completely japanese with japanese contact info etc.
