Thread: Whats your purpose in life?

Punisherr - October 22, 2016, 1:28 pm

Hey, I'm 16 years old now soon to become 17 and slowly I'm starting to search for my purpose now. Just out of curiosity I'd like to ask you guys.

- Whats your purpose in life?
- How did you find it?
- Do you even believe in a „purpose,, of life?

Thanks in advance to all of you!
(Btw. I'm german sorry for any grammar mistakes ?)

To have a family, live off the grid in a small house, help people and enjoy life's little pleasures.

My purpose in life is to make my parents proud and finish college and have a successful life.

I found this when my parents immigrated over and had difficulty because they didn't know english, now they have minimum wage jobs and are barely passing and using their excess cash on me.

Yes, I believe there is a purpose in life for everyone, everyone in the world has a role in society.

To conceptualise a purpose of life is to impose human thinking upon an incomprehensible universe.

You need not so much worry about finding meaning in life, because the very fact that there even is existence, is meaningful in and of itself. Not in an intellectual manner, however, but simply for the sheer fact that there is.

Now, if you were to commit the atrocity of actually compromising the very fact of existence and life itself, you could say that life is to be lived. But since there can't be an experience of non-experience, there can't ever be anything but life in that sense. So once again, meaning and purpose is thrown out the window.

^ Too deep bra.

My purpose is to improve my mental state, there's quick fixes and ones you have to work for. I guess we choose which option we want.

Only purpose I can see is just to enjoy life and make the most of it while you are here, whatever that is. You are only here for so long. Whether you like playing games 24/7 or creating new nuclear theories, everything is the same in the end for all of us, so the best you can do is just enjoy what you like doing.
