I would personally say 6.5/10.

I just feel like all 3 elements don't "quite" merge together. They work alright and get the job done though :)

I'd say about a 8/10, the art style is slightly too off put for my style, but overall it's well put together.
The logo is hella nice

good work OP

One thing I did notice is that you didn't continue your trace on the characters wrist: Looks like it is his arm bulging out at a distance.

I do think that a completely blurred background does give it a little bit of an odd feel to it, But there are a few uses where this would actually be what you are looking for. For general use, as a marker or "stamp" if you want to call it that, I would give it a little but more depth of field if its possible, taking it from completely extracting the foreground character and logo and giving it a bit more of a "pseudo-realistic" feel that might be more attractive. However I can think of decent uses for both styles, pros and cons of each, and it all depends on what you and your client were aiming for. Vector isn't the easiest thing in the world to do without losing some of these realism factors. I wouldn't be able to responsibly rate unless it was put into context, but there is no need, as your work is Impressive for sure!

Edit* Fyi I'm more of a photographer, so that inevitably impacts how I go about thinking of things like this.

yeah , i guess about 1-2 hours .

ScarDesigns - October 30, 2016, 8:41 am

Not bad at all, I like the style of it.

Hi I'm Agreeable - November 1, 2016, 4:01 pm

Nice vector art as always, Motusora.

ogRizah - November 1, 2016, 4:13 pm

Hash Brown - November 4, 2016, 6:02 pm

7/10

Make the logo stand out against the background more, and make the background less blurry.

it's a watermark man , it's nothing to do with the design however thanks for rating ?

Viction - November 4, 2016, 8:11 pm

The person is pretty clean, but the blurred background is quite throwing it off. Also what is is suppose to be about???

Mr.ious Mystic - November 4, 2016, 8:13 pm

It's same as my POV when i get drunk haha, very nice focus on business. But logo can be a little smaller, and background shouds be visible few % more, atleast to get better edges of what is behind. Overall nice done

Any actually purpose behind it though or did he just say like " Can you make a vectorized picture of me" ???

actually i made 3 backgrounds for that vector but i submitted that blurry background first .
fortunately my client was satisfied with the result so that's it. ?

I have a question, these are pretty fucking dope to be honest and I'm interested in learning on how to do this type of design, do you have any good tutorials or tips that might help me out with like shading or even over all cartooning/vector look???

Torc - November 4, 2016, 8:29 pm

Not a fan of the blurred background, but I like the guy. Was it done all by hand with pen tool or did you take an image of the guy and just recolor him and make him look cartoonish?

I don't understand. Do you want us to actually be honest with you and give you our opinion or just be kind and say it looks good?

I think there should be more details in the face of the dude.

Reduce the blur in the background, it does not fit.

I feel as if you're so damn good at this that you should hold a service where you can attempt to teach some people. I'd love to learn how this is done. I know I'd damn sure never be close to as good as you, but getting even 50% as good as you would be insane!

practice is the only key man ... what i did is , i just watched a bunch of tutorials on youtube ... you'll become better or 100 times better than me if you'll put enough effort and time to your creations ...

good luck ?
