Thread: Manga that made you cry or leave you teary?

Since the anime thread already exists and I didn't see any manga thread about it I decided to make something similar since I know there's plenty of manga readers in this section as well.

For me definitely Nozoki Ana and KNIM(Kimi no Iru Machi).

Because they both are based on our society and kinda feel like something that may be real, all the feelings you see through the manga, all the lovey dovey relationships and heart warming feelings that the readers feel when reading it is just too awesome, and it always tears me up a bit when ending these mangas with a happy ending, also end up getting PADS for a while.

I'll add Kimi no Iru Machi to my PTR list, it looks decent.

And while I loved it, Nozoki Ana didn't make me cry, but it made me feel a lot. I felt emptiness when I finished it because it was just too good and I knew I wouldn't find any other Manga like it. Yeah, there's a lot of hentai (vanilla though) in Nozoki Ana, I won't lie, but it's so much more than that as there's an actual plot and real relationship issues. I recommend it.

I didn't cry in either of them but they made me really teary, KNIM in 2 situations (you'll know which ones when you read it) and Nozoki Ana ending was beautiful.

And yea like you said both of them left me that emptiness feeling, almost as if depressing Q_Q

But seriously, read KNIM it's awesome, the manga shows MC's life from 16 years old to 23-24 years old and it's awesome.
