Thread: My new simplistic logo design Rate/Suggest Changes Please!

Blue Shadow - October 29, 2016, 8:13 pm

Designing a new logo for a graphics shop I am starting soon. I wanted a very simple logo and this is what I came up with, please suggest any changes and rate it! ?

original (Click to View)

Edit: I remade it (this is the photoshop design so edges might be rough, will change the image when done creating in AI)

new (Click to View)

new with text (large image) (Click to View)

That's as simple as it can get!

Nice work, good luck with your graphics shop

i like the simplistic style the bit on the sides is a really nice touch simple and modern looking

I would like to see some symmetry involved but definitely decent.

Not bad, just the white/blue combination when they interact makes it a tiny bit harder to read.

But other than that, yeah it looks decent and simple like you were going for, good job!

don't have any idea on what's that logo means so i can't rate on the concept yet .

its simplicity seems nice however i think it would be better IF you'll post a mock up design using that logo for better views .

anyway, good luck with your sales .

I like it, I think it would look better with the putter arrows white.

It's not bad but it isn't much of a logo design more as an avatar. It's a simple font on a shape, nothing creative. It's not something you would really want to brand yourself with.

I have remade the original after reviewing suggestions. Special shoutout to ScarDesigns' suggestion.

Font is no good. Text is too large.

I don't like the font choice either, but yea it's a nice shape.

However, take this as an advice, always try and give your logos a meaning, a story they tell.

I don't see any sort of meaning or message in this logo design!

I'd take InspiredOne's advice into consideration he knows his stuff.

When I look at both they bother me because I can't really understand the off skewed diamond or the contents within the logo. I liked the first more but I think it needed to be re-worked in a sense of orientation and thickness of elements (diamond/font).

I think it looks really good except maybe changing the font to one with similar style, but have hard edges and not rounded edges, Nice anyways :D

Classicz - October 30, 2016, 5:30 pm

You're second version looks really good :)

Luxion - November 2, 2016, 11:33 am

This is very simplistic but I really like this.

PabloCE - November 2, 2016, 12:42 pm

quite nice but i would recommend making text more bold to make it easier to see for the first one and for the second one i would just add the text somewhere too i think it will make it look more professional.

EDIT: *did not see 3rd design. Much better but i think that if you remove the rhombus' inside and replace with something else it will look better. They seem too thin also comparing to the rest of the logo. Font also not the best choice i would say but very good logo so far! Keep it up!

Logo has a very simplistic look to it which gives off a clean, sophisticated image. Definitely something I'd personally want for a company if I was to start one trashbag - November 3, 2016, 10:01 am really clean and looks modern
