Thread: Emergency Expelled for "terroristic threats"

Jerry Smith - November 2, 2016, 10:16 am

So monday I was "suspended" for 2 days for skipping class right.

I asked if I could go back to class and they were like "no, you clearly can't contain your anger", and I replied with "Yes I can you don't see me trying to get a gun to shoot up this place, do you?" and they took it as a fucking threat (which I didn't know)

So today right I go back to school and they had 3 campus safety guards and 4 cops and I found out I was emergency expelled for terroristic threats... WHAT THE FUCK!?

I hate this school.

I am not sure where you live but most places have passed legislation that require you to explicitly say that it's just a prank bro after making a comment like that.

Vouch, its like this is my country.

Web_Development - November 2, 2016, 10:31 am

I actually agree with schools decision after you said something like that, because:

1. They already are saying you have problems with anger.
2. You point out the fact that you are not shooting school (yet) and you DISAGREE with their decision, so it makes them think if they do not accept you, you might not care anymore and do it.

Better be safe than sorry.

Add. - Of course I do not know the details of the situation, but that is what I think from info given in your thread.

Marshmallow - November 2, 2016, 10:45 am

So you got suspended and asked to go back to class and they told you you can't control your anger?

What is the correlation?

Because shooting up a school/place is ridiculous. And it counts as dark humour when said correctly. I like to say these types of jokes to my friends in real life. But, I wouldn't be stupid enough to say it to somebody I don't know. OP must of said it out of frustration, heck even I have said it. It's stupid I know, but school shootings are usually always mocked in the dark humour community.
