When these awesome keyloggers were in this forum, hacking was pretty fun, since their disappearance, it has been When will we have excellent and perfect keyloggers that can be used to compare their products. Even in your absence, VERY BIG vouch to you guys.

Yes you are right, most sold loggers today have bunch of features that people either don't need or don't work. The prices are ridiculously low as compared to before.

maxlifted - November 12, 2016, 4:08 am

Among the currently selling loggers here, I have not seen anyone with complete features like stability, excellent password stealers(all browser and mail clients), compatibility with FUD crypters, various delivery options like ftp and webpanel. Indeed, I personally missed those old keyloggers.

holybishop - November 13, 2016, 1:19 pm

Yes, some features are not necessary, the important features don't work, Just make it stable, clean, simple and leave out those jingles that are not needed.

Flexid - November 15, 2016, 10:52 pm

I think i have made similar post like this before, nothing has and will(seeming so by the day) ever beat the stability and prowess of predator pain and keybase... GOD i miss those good times!

Any keylogger that needs a crypter to keep it FUD does not need to have the same things available on all crypters here because those things are better used during encryption.

A stable browser password recovery, applications password recovery, all mail clients recovery, neat and understandable key strokes log, smtp delivery, FTP and individual panel system you can install on your own hosting to avoid losing clients if the general hosting goes down. That is all I need in a keylogger, the rest will be the job of the crypter. If it is this simple, the coder will have more time and easy on having it stable all the time.

When jingles conflict and confuse each other, stability becomes the victim.

Oh that's sure, Happy days but not the best, I believe in future & I hope this will be a wake up call for Real awesome coders to Retrieve good days back probably A stable browser password recovery, applications password recovery, all mail clients recovery, neat and understandable key strokes log, smtp delivery, FTP and individual panel system you can install on your own hosting to avoid losing clients if the general hosting goes down. That's all we need in a keylogger...& not jingles and jangass (Nov 16, 2016 11:29 AM)R.Reddington Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Well I am the coder of half the keyloggers on the market at the moment, and I can tell you for sure that they are all very stable.

I tell you that they are not stable. I was among the first persons that bought your compact keylogger which has now been sold to someone else (who banned by license for nothing). That keylogger was the major reason this thread was made. Currently, there is hardly a keylogger on this market with compact and stable features working flawlessly.

Arrested yes but I highly doubt that he will be arrested for that long. 10 years is just an estimation by the media.

I really wish i had them code for me a private keylogger and i pay the premium price than try some of these shitty keyloggers in the marketers... damn i have tried a whole lot and i must categorically say that there is no keylogger as good as hawkeye, limitless ,syndicate and keybase... the rest are just a bunch of trash.. some don't even report nothing

Which keylogger are you currently using or would you advise i should get ? RESPONSE NEEDED ,cos I tried Autolog and ispy and both don't work for me. PLEASE NOT trying to spite anyone but on a serious note some coder should give us something simple, even at a premium price and i know some of us don't mind paying and not this cheap jargons

I think though that its the awareness that windows and AV companies are getting is what is making the work harder for coders, faster patches, stronger firewall, badass AV's and the rest, stuff just aint what it used to be
