Thread: Learn something new and fun in a few minutes. Part 1

DontWorryBeHappy - November 14, 2016, 4:13 pm

Hey everyone,

Posting some fun things many people probably simply didn't know about. Simple fun knowledge that we can all use to mess with our friends or relatives and that most of us may not have learned in the classroom.

We're on the internet messing around anyway, why not learn something in 30 seconds right? Enjoy!

So basically why this works is because the alka seltzer creates CO₂. The CO₂ that forms is denser (heavier) than the oxygen in the air so it remains in the container. When the container is "poured over" the fire, the CO₂ "pours" out like water would and falls downward - again, because it's denser than the air around it. As it result, it suffocates the flame (pushes the air away from the flame which the flame needs to survive) and puts it out.

This is a cool/fun trick to do at the holidays or with your drunk friends if you drink.

on the tv show the host lit 100 candles and put 100 alka's into a giant tube, let it build up then poured the tube over the candles and put all 100 out before the gas was gone.

i can't see how this could be dangerous unless u tried to light ur house on fire... dur

i tried this small scale and just had a good laugh because i thought it was cool

muppy - November 14, 2016, 4:27 pm haha it must be so a good laugh without it danger or any of that it's the simple things that we have to indulge in a little knowledge, a little fun, why not

DontWorryBeHappy - November 18, 2016, 5:20 pm

just thought more people might want to get a good laugh
