Thread: Ready to hear some aids? \(Your Name/Kimi no Na wa Dub Trailer\)

Chips Ahoy McCoy - November 17, 2016, 12:46 am

I really wish they'd just keep it subbed. I understand that they need to dub it for english audiences, but seriously.. Could you hire some new voice actors?

BahNahNah - November 17, 2016, 12:51 am

On the off chance that this movie actually makes it to NZ theaters, I hope they give us the sub and not this cancer.

Was going to consider going to LA to watch it in theaters when it's released December 2-8th, but not now. I'm just going to wait for a web release/blu-ray release.

Doesn't sound too bad to me to be honest.

SkullCandy - November 17, 2016, 2:22 am

This really doesn't sound bad at all - I get it, there are sub purists out there but these actors are not that bad.

Fake weeb !

Dub is never the answer.

Dub is never the answer. Nobody likes to be 100% weeb mate and personally I think English users should choose DUB over SUB because believe me if you watch SUB for long it greatly affects your English Skills

Personally I watch DUB with SUB subtitles so I don't miss anything

DerMensch24 - November 17, 2016, 10:19 am

Dub doesn't seem too bad, while I prefer subs usually I will probably watch whichever is the most readily available when it goes global

RainbowHentai - November 17, 2016, 10:51 am

This is what you get when you rush a project

Mafty Navue Erin - November 17, 2016, 11:25 am

I hate to be that guy here but I just watched the Japanese trailer and their voices sounded generic and emotionless. It might be because I watched the dubbed trailer first but it honestly feels the other way around for me.

Professor Pantsu - November 17, 2016, 12:15 pm

Pretty standard dub quality, I expected them to at least try harder for a movie that's this big right now. But I guess I've heard worse.

No and I don't plan on giving it a try.

Oww this shit hurts my ears.

Armady1 - November 17, 2016, 3:03 pm

Doesn't sound bad compared to other dubs

Is that sarcasm? I can never tell when people are serious when they use emoticons.

No it's not sarcasm, i can relate to 75% of it, I'm not really angry.

Ok, cool. Now-a-days I'm only really angry when I'm here because I don't like most people on this website.

Imo, the Japanese Dub sounds normal, and the English Dub sounds like they're trying way too hard to be Cartoon Characters. These are the kinds of voices I'd expect to hear on Nickelodeon or something, not a more serious-toned SoL Anime Movie. The Girl's voice at 0:45 is especially unfitting. The only voice I don't really mind is the MC's.

ze-slade - November 18, 2016, 3:52 pm

I actually don't mind it, it looks pretty good IMO. I don't think it will top spirited away or come relatively close to it, that movie was just pure amazing, nothing will ever top that in my books.

Crya - November 18, 2016, 5:40 pm

Male voice not bad, the female's on the other hand...
