Thread: Blockchain Unconfirmed Transactions \(25,000\)

asvps - November 23, 2016, 2:58 pm

I know there have been multiple threads on this but when do you think this is gonna be over? I've had multiple transactions not confirm! (2 days since I sent them) Just hoping everything goes back to normal, thoughts?

EDIT - SLOWLY GOING BACK TO NORMAL - BACK TO 25,000 UNCONFIRMED TRANSACTIONS

its the end of the world

It's been going up and up

Knowing the situation right now, why don't people just use a wallet with dynamic fees and set dynamic fee to be the highest estimate.

I did a lot of transactions last 2 days, never took more than 1 hour.

Agreed, I set the fee a couple of cents higher and always got my confirmation within 10 minutes.

I did this as well, but I'm receiving payments from Rocketr which haven't been confirmed leading to my Payments that I send not confirming.

I've had a transaction pending for 30 hours now, paid 12 cents fees (Which was the suggested amount), it's hella fucking annoying but unfortunately we just have to wait it out. If I had known it would take that long in the first place I'd of happily paid a much higher fee like 50 cents.

There's nothing to do at this point other than wait and hope for the best. I'm with you OP, I know how frustrating these things can get.

It's even more frustrating when your deposit requires X amount of confirmations & I'm trying to order a physical item, so it has now cost me 2 days of it not being shipped, hella inconvenient.

I'm just hoping this is all over by Monday, that's when the Black Friday sales end. Looking to cop some designers.

Deposit or withdraw?

I know bustabit uses a lot of fees when you withdraw.

I was going to add some money into my BTC account today, but I didn't do it because of this. RIP BTC.

That's a pretty decent fee, I don't see you waiting as long as I have ? 34 hours & counting, what a cunt.
